Figures Seem To Indicate Rate Of Inflation Slowing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration's repeated contention that inflation is nearly over has been given new support by seemingly contradictory figures in the most recent Gross National Product report.

Prices continued their four-year climb during January, February and March with an annual rate increase of 5 per cent, the Commerce Department reported Thursday. But at the same time, actual output of goods and services dropped a dramatic 1 1/2 per cent, the steepest decline since the recession of almost a decade ago.

The Federal Reserve Board also reported industrial production climbed slightly in March after seven consecutive months of decline, giving some hope the economy is picking up again after the government-induced slowdown.

"The figures suggest to me that the economy is bottoming or maybe has bottomed," the Commerce Department's chief economist, Asst. Secretary Harold C. Passer, said.

"The worst is behind us," Asst. Budget Bureau Director Maurice Mann said, although he cautioned "We may still get some bad numbers—we may still see some higher unemployment," he said.

But Mann, Passer and Sidney Jones, an economist for the President's Council of Economic Advisers, remained convinced the economy would follow the "game plan" laid down by the council two months ago: It will be slow until summer, when it will begin picking up but not fast enough to set off a new round of inflation.

What this means in terms of the price of eggs and beef isn't yet clear, but the spiraling increases of wholesale prices seem to be slackening, which may be turned into less exuberant increases in consumer prices.

Commerce said the overall Gross National Product, which measures the value of all the nation's goods and services,

Guard Stays At Miami U

Alert Against New Disorders

OFORD, Ohio (AP) — Seven hundred Ohio National Guardsmen remained on alert today near Miami University in the wake of a disorder on the campus Wednesday night and a strike call Thursday.

John McElroy, Gov. James A. Rhodes' aide, said that Adjutant Gen. Sylvester Del Corso plans to ask the governor to authorize release of the troops tonight if the campus remains peaceful. The guardsmen have been on alert at the Nike Missile Base near here since early Thursday.

The Black Student Action Association (BSAA), backed by the White Support Coalition of various white groups on campus including members against United States' involvement in Vietnam, called Thursday afternoon for an "indefinite strike" to start immediately.

Larry Clark, head of the BSAA made the call during a rally of about 4,500 students at Withrow Court. A large group of students is apparently dissatisfied with the university's reaction to lists of demands from both the BSAA and the coalition.

On Wednesday night, 180 students were arrested on charges of trespassing or breaking and entering — or both — after the Naval ROTC building was occupied and the students refused to leave. They were ejected by Ohio State Highway patrolmen. Sixty-three students were treated for effects from tear gas used by other law enforcement officers in dispersing crowds outside the building.

U.S. Ambassador Wanted Recalled By Jordanians

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Official sources reported today that the Jordanian government asked the United States to remove its ambassador from Amman, apparently because he advised U.S. Asst. Secretary of State Joseph Sisco to cancel his visit to Jordan.

Foreign Minister Abdel Moineim Rifai requested the State Department to pull out Ambassador Harrison Matthews Symmes, the sources said, because the government "can find no justification for his attitude and inclination as regards the Arab position in the face of Israeli aggression."

A State Department spokesman in Washington said the department had not received word of the Jordanian action and therefore the department could neither confirm nor deny the reports. There was speculation that the Jordanian ambassador to the United States would deliver the demand to the department during the day.

Sisco, now touring the Middle East, was scheduled to arrive from Israel today to talk with King Hussein. The State Department canceled the visit Thursday, reportedly on Symmes' advice, after Palestinian guerrillas led violent demonstrations for two days in Amman against

Protesters Hit Bank In California

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — A young man was reported hit in the back by birdshot Thursday night as sheriff's deputies clashed with young people smashing windows in the Bank of America branch which replaced the one burned by rioters in February.

A spokesman at Goleta Valley Hospital said Wong Messina, 21, was being treated for birdshot which hit him at the site of the disturbance. His condition was described as satisfactory.

Witnesses said some of the 200 helmeted sheriff's deputies were firing shotguns. The sheriff's department would neither confirm nor deny those reports.

The officers lobbed dozens of tear gas canisters at the 500 demonstrators in the Isla Vista community about six miles north of here. Windows were also smashed in nearby real estate offices.

Spring Arrives In Nation; So Does Litter

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Springtime '70. As snowbanks recede workers fan out to reap a bumper crop of the nation's ugliest harvest: Litter.

U.S. Studies Cambodian Aid Request

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration is reported approaching Cambodia's request for military assistance with extreme caution.

There seems to be little doubt here that the Cambodian army needs or will soon need arms. But some officials say an international arrangement to furnish aid, pegged to the purpose of supporting Cambodian neutrality, might afford the best solution to the problem.

The State Department announced Thursday a request for military assistance—meaning arms and other material—had been received from the new Cambodian government of Premier Lon Nol, who overthrew former chief of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

A spokesman said the request was being "examined," a word chosen to avoid saying that it was already being considered.

About the same time Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he was opposed to granting U.S. arms aid to Cambodia.

Administration leaders expect any decision to meet the Cambodian request directly will draw new fire from critics in Congress.

On the other hand they fear without some assistance Cambodia may not survive as a neutral country.

The Cambodian request for aid has been addressed not only to the United States but to many other countries.

In a statement April 14 Premier Lon Nol said the government would accept "all unconditional foreign aid from all sources."

This broad appeal opened up the possibility the United States would consult with other friendly governments about a possible international arrangement for providing military supplies. No one in Washington was sure exactly how this might be done.

The new regime has been involved in some fighting with North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces using Cambodian border territory as sanctuary in the Vietnam war.

On the diplomatic-propaganda side of the problem facing the Nixon administration, mainland China and North Vietnam already have accused the United States and South Vietnam of conspiring with Cambodia to broaden the war in Indo-China.

Plutonium To Crash Into Sea

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — A cask of radioactive plutonium 238 from the Apollo 13 lunar lander is expected to plummet undamaged through the earth's atmosphere today and bury itself in the Pacific Ocean.

The fragile lander Aquarius itself will burn up on re-entry into the atmosphere. But the plutonium, attached to the outside of the lander, has a heat-resistant graphite-beryllium casing and is expected to plunge intact into the sea.

And in Portland, Ore., John Piacentini shows off a pile of cans and bottles outside the warehouse for the 60 Plaid Pantry supermarkets he owns.

The pile represents only a few of the 3 million or so cans and bottles turned in to his stores after he offered a half a cent apiece. The project, which lasted 18 days, cost him $15,000.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., estimates that unless the gradual demise of the deposit bottle is reversed, the 25 billion one-way cans and bottles produced in 1958 will swell to 58 billion six years from now.

Nelson's proposed Packaging Pollution Control Act would empower the government to levy

"packaging charges" on containers "scaled to reflect the level of adverse environmental effects."

Oregon and Indiana are considering similar measures.

More immediately, Nelson and other officials like presidential consumer assistant Virginia Knauer have turned their heaviest fire on the can and bottle industry in an attempt to roll back the snowballing trend toward NRs.

The expense of the NRs is plain. The wholesale price lists for Pepsi-Cola and Coca-Cola in Washington show a case of 24 12-ounce deposit bottles is $2.10 plus 48 cents deposit. A case of 10-ounce throw-away bottles costs $2.55. A case of 12-ounce cans costs $2.85.

Beer bottles used to be good for 38 trips from brewery to consumer and back again. Now deposit beer bottles make 19 trips. Returnable soft drink bottles make half that many.

Industry spokesmen cite the same figures as a sign that increasingly affluent consumers for the use of tear gas and dogs Wednesday night.

Cloud, speaking at a Republican reception in suburban Upper Arlington, attacked the proposed Ohio State University $10 fee increase as "an excessive and untimely financial burden for students and their parents."

He added that as governor he would support a freeze on student fee increases.

Cloud said that "especially hard-hit would be the students who contribute to the cost of their education, not to mention their living expenses."

He urged university administrators to re-examine OSU organizational structures and procedures to determine if savings can be made to block need for more fees.

Representatives of the students planning to stage the march from OSU to the Statehouse, members of "Students for Reasonable Fees and Fair Taxes," organized in Athens a week ago. The group said its goal is to give students "a viable voice in political issues affecting education in Ohio."

The students hope they'll have about 5,000 in the planned "silent" march to the Statehouse where leaders said they would present petitions "to an empty Statehouse — symbolic of the quality of legislation concerning education that has come from that building in recent years."

More Landslides Endanger Avalanche Rescue Workers

SALLANCHES, France (AP) — More landslides today endangered workers sifting the debris of the avalanche that killed 72 persons at a children's tuberculosis sanatorium Thursday.

Mounting skepticism greeted an official judgment that the avalanche was unforeseeable.

Teams working through the night under floodlights dug out more bodies of victims. By mid-morning 42 corpses had been recovered from the thousands of tons of rock, earth and snow that crashed down on the hospital from a mountain called the Roc des Fils.

Thursday night and again this morning work was halted by new slides of earth and rock.

The one during the night caused no injuries, and work was resumed an hour later. The one this morning smashed into a wing of the sanatorium which escaped the killer slide Thursday. The sanatorium had been evacuated, but the slide today broke a gendarme's leg.

The police posted warnings and lookouts on the mountain.

Health Minister Robert Boulin told newsmen that the avalanche was "as unforeseeable as an earthquake." But local persons pointed to a minor avalanche last April 5, which reached the sanatorium. Though it caused no damage, hospital authorities thought it necessary to evacuate part of one of the dormitories that was destroyed Thursday.

"That slide was considered serious enough to call in experts," one person said. The experts judged the danger had passed.

An official inquiry has been opened into Thursday's avalanche, the most deadly single slide in European history.

ponents said the cost will turn out as much as three times that figure.

In the Senate, several members have tipped their hand on proposed amendments changing the benefits.

Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., has proposed an initial family floor of $2,520, rising by stages to $3,600.

Sen. Charles L. Goodell, R-N.Y., advocates a $3,800 floor.

Others, however, may attempt to trim the bill. Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., has termed the cost estimate hopelessly inadequate and said the work incentive provisions are no improvement over present law.

The Senate Finance Committee plans a preliminary briefing on the complicated measure next week, with hearings to follow, aimed at a Senate vote in June.

The measure provides a $1,600 federally assured income for a family of four and increases the role of eligible persons by an estimated 13 million, mostly the working poor and their families.

It requires adult beneficiaries to register for job training and assignment. The federal government would assume a greater share of the cost and administration.

The aged, blind and disabled would be assured $110 a month. By official estimates, the bill would cost $4.4 billion—but opponents said the cost will turn out as much as three times that figure.

Despite the cancellation of Sisco's visit, demonstrators marched through the streets of Amman again today, carrying banners and shouting slogans against U.S. policy in the Middle East.

Amman was also hit by a general strike, with all shops, banks and business offices closed. Guerrillas, military police and army troops patrolled the streets, and some scattered shooting was heard.

ABOARD USS IWO JIMA (AP) — Apollo 13's astronauts blazed back to the safety of their home planet today with a pinpoint landing in the Pacific Ocean, bringing a successful conclusion to America's most perilous space adventure.

The Odyssey, carrying James A. Lovell Jr., Fred W. Haise Jr. and John L. Swigert Jr., hit the gently rolling water within sight of this helicopter carrier.

Hundreds of cheering sailors on the deck of the Iwo Jima and anxious television viewers around the world had a ringside seat as the spaceship dropped through a thin layer of clouds, dangling from beneath three huge orange and white parachutes.

Initial estimates placed the Odyssey just four miles due south of the carrier.

"We got you on the screen," Mission Control radioed the spaceship. "You're looking great."

The spaceship landed right side up in the gently rolling waves, in contrast to several previous Apollo ships which turned upside down on splashdown. The flight lasted 5 days, 22 hours, 53 minutes and covered more than half a million miles. It was shortened by four days after an oxygen tank explosion Monday night cancelled man's third moon landing expedition and forced the astronauts to fight for survival with the resources of their lunar landing craft.

The touchdown occurred 34 minutes after the astronauts discarded the lunar lander Aquarius that served as their lifeline as they fought for survival for four days in space.

"She sure was a good ship," Commander Lovell said of the tiny craft.

As the astronauts jettisoned their service module earlier they reported, "There's one whole side of that spacecraft missing . . . it's a mess." But that damage, outside the command ship, would not affect their safe return to earth.

The damage was the result of the oxygen tank rupture that aborted the moon-landing mission Monday night and forced the astronauts to fight for survival with the resources of their lunar lander.

The separation of the service module came at the end of an hour of furious activity in which James A. Lovell Jr., Fred W. Haise Jr. and John L. Swigert Jr. turned on the electrical power in the command ship and fired a control jet to aim for an afternoon landing in the Pacific Ocean.

The service module damage would present no problem to the astronauts' return to earth.

Following the separation, Lovell said one whole panel, 22 feet long, and part of the engine bell were missing.

"Looks like a lot of debris is just hanging off the side," Lovell said.

More Landslides Endanger Avalanche Rescue Workers

SALLANCHES, France (AP) — More landslides today endangered workers sifting the debris of the avalanche that killed 72 persons at a children's tuberculosis sanatorium Thursday. Mounting skepticism greeted an official judgment that the avalanche was unforeseeable.

Teams working through the night under floodlights dug out more bodies of victims. By mid-morning 42 corpses had been recovered from the thousands of tons of rock, earth and snow that crashed down on the hospital from a mountain called the Roc des Fils.

Thursday night and again this morning work was halted by new slides of earth and rock.

The one during the night caused no injuries, and work was resumed an hour later.

one this morning smashed into a wing of the sanatorium which escaped the killer slide Thursday. The sanatorium had been evacuated, but the slide today broke a gendarme's leg.

The police posted warnings and lookouts on the mountain.

Health Minister Robert Boulin told newsmen that the avalanche was "as unforeseeable as an earthquake." But local persons pointed to a minor avalanche last April 5, which reached the sanatorium. Though it caused no damage, hospital authorities thought it necessary to evacuate part of one of the dormitories that was destroyed Thursday.

"That slide was considered serious enough to call in experts," one person said. The experts judged the danger had passed.

An official inquiry has been opened into Thursday's avalanche, the most deadly single slide in European history.

CHS Enjoys Long Tenure Of Accreditation

Circleville High School is the only high school in Ohio which has enjoyed continuous accreditation since 1903 by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

In celebration of its Diamond Anniversary, the association has just published "A 75-Year History of the Association." It is significant to note that from an initial list of 223 accredited schools in the 19-state area first published in 1904, the number has grown to a total of 3819 schools currently accredited.

According to Dr. Harold J. Bowers, deputy superintendent of public instruction and a 1922 graduate of Circleville High School and a resident of Ashville, who has held offices in the association over the past 12 years, the association has, in his opinion, been a powerful influence in improving the quality of secondary education.

The citizens of Circleville should take pride in the fact that they have supported a high school which has had an uninterrupted period of 67 years in which it has maintained a higher quality program of education than that assured with mere compliance of state-prescribed standards. The school has also benefited from many services provided by the association.

The history also reveals that Dr. Bowers was one of seven Ohioans elected to honorary life membership in the association during its 75-year history.

ponents said the cost will turn out as much as three times that figure.

In the Senate, several members have tipped their hand on proposed amendments changing the benefits.

Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., has proposed an initial family floor of $2,520, rising by stages to $3,600.

Sen. Charles L. Goodell, R-N.Y., advocates a $3,800 floor. Others, however, may attempt to trim the bill. Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., has termed the cost estimate hopelessly inadequate and said the work incentive provisions are no improvement over present law.

The Senate Finance Committee plans a preliminary briefing on the complicated measure next week, with hearings to follow, aimed at a Senate vote in June.

The measure provides a $1,600 federally assured income for a family of four and increases the roll of eligible persons by an estimated 13 million, mostly the working poor and their families. It requires adult beneficiaries to register for job training and assignment. The federal government would assume a greater share of the cost and administration.

The aged, blind and disabled would be assured $110 a month. By official estimates, the bill would cost $4.4 billion—but opponents

Cloud backs Fee Boost Protesters

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Students from state-supported universities planning a demonstration at the Statehouse Saturday to protest increases in fees got a measure of support on the fee problem today from State Auditor Roger Cloud, Republican gubernatorial candidate.

Cloud, speaking at a Republican reception in suburban Upper Arlington, attacked the proposed Ohio State University $10 fee increase as "an excessive and untimely financial burden for students and their parents."

He added that as governor he would support a freeze on student fee increases.

Cloud said that "especially hard-hit would be the students who contribute to the cost of their education, not to mention their living expenses."

He urged university administrators to re-examine OSU organizational structures and procedures to determine if savings can be made to block need for more fees.

Representatives of the students planning to stage the march from OSU to the Statehouse, members of "Students for Reasonable Fees and Fair Taxes," organized in Athens a week ago. The group said its goal is to give students "a viable voice in political issues affecting education in Ohio."

The students hope they'll have about 5,000 in the planned "silent" march to the Statehouse where leaders said they would present petitions "to an empty Statehouse — symbolic of the quality of legislation concerning education that has come from that building in recent years," said.

Recovery Ship Crewmen Said Marijuana Users

ABOARD USS IWO JIMA (AP) — A reporter for the San Francisco Examiner says about a half dozen of the 1,000 crewmen aboard this prime Apollo 13 recovery ship have smoked marijuana almost every night since leaving port. But he adds "the smoking parties appeared to have tapered off" as splashdown approached.

The Defense Department said it would have no immediate comment after the report Thursday, but would investigate.

Robert Gillette, of the Examiner, a pool reporter aboard the ship, said "one regular smoker is a crewman aboard one of the eight Apollo rescue helicopters."

"He has no intention of smoking marijuana before the actual recovery of Apollo 13, but he was high during at least one recovery rehearsal flight that took place before the Iwo Jima left Pearl Harbor April 4," Gillette said.

Guard Stays At Miami U

Alert Against New Disorders

OFORD, Ohio (AP) — Seven hundred Ohio National Guardsmen remained on alert today near Miami University in the wake of a disorder on the campus Wednesday night and a strike call Thursday.

John McElroy, Gov. James A. Rhodes' aide, said that Adjutant Gen. Sylvester Del Corso plans to ask the governor to authorize release of the troops tonight if the campus remains peaceful. The guardsmen have been on alert at the Nike Missile Base near here since early Thursday.

The Black Student Action Association (BSAA), backed by the White Support Coalition of various white groups on campus including members against United States' involvement in Vietnam, called Thursday afternoon for an "indefinite strike" to start immediately.

Larry Clark, head of the BSAA made the call during a rally of about 4,300 students at Withrow Court. A large group of students is apparently dissatisfied with the university's reaction to lists of demands from both the BSAA and the coalition.

On Wednesday night, 180 students were arrested on charges of trespassing or breaking and entering — or both — after the Naval ROTC building was occupied and the students refused to leave. They were ejected by Ohio State Highway patrolmen. Sixty-three students were treated for effects from tear gas used by other law enforcement officers in dispersing crowds outside the building.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Springtime '70. As snowbanks recede workers fan out to reap a bumper crop of the nation's ugliest harvest: Litter.

Government officials, meanwhile, are proposing new taxes, regulations or research on the NRs—nonreturnable bottles and cans—to cut down the potential source of trash.

Clean-up volunteers, stirred in part by popularization of the environment as a social and political issue, are supplementing highway and park crews which have been gathering the trash for years.

Stone County, Ark., freed children from school to pick up litter. Officials expect 70,000 or more persons to turn out for "Green Up Day" in Vermont Saturday. Huntington, W. Va., residents will be scouring the town for bottles the same day to earn a $20 a ton bounty from Owens-Illinois glass company.

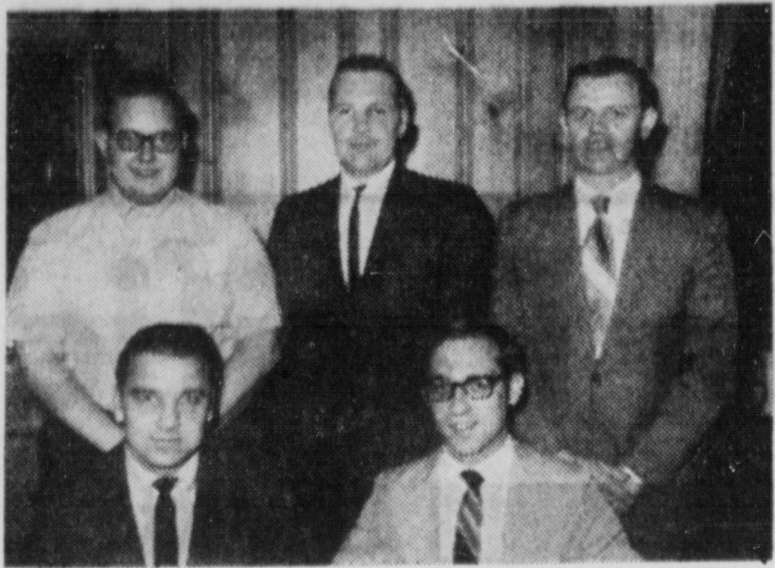

And in Portland, Ore., John Placentino shows off a pile of cans and bottles outside the warehouse for the 60 Plaid Pantry supermarkets he owns.

The pile represents only a few of the 3 million or so cans and bottles turned in to his stores after he offered a half a cent apiece. The project, which lasted 18 days, cost him $15,000.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., estimates that unless the gradual demise of the deposit bottle is reversed, the 25 billion one-way cans and bottles produced in 1958 will swell to 58 billion six years from now.

Nelson's proposed Packaging Pollution Control Act would empower the government to levy

Hussein's decision to ask for Symmes' withdrawal is seen here as an indication of ebbing power in the face of guerrilla pressure.

Court Refuses

To Remove Lawton Name

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An equally-divided Ohio Supreme Court today refused to remove Edwin Lawton's name from the May 5 ballot as an American Independent Party candidate for governor.

The vote was 3-3.

Robert W. Annable, another AIP candidate for the post, challenged Lawton's candidacy on grounds that he swore he had not voted for a different party at a primary election in the preceding four years.

The court noted the declaration was false because Lawton, of Columbus, voted in Republican primaries in 1966 and 1968. It denied Annable's writ, it said, because it was evenly divided on the issue.

Secretary of State Ted W. Brown earlier ruled Lawton did not come under the four-year rule because the AIP was a new political party.

The rule was upheld in another case involving Vernon D. Bible, Cincinnati, who sought to force the Hamilton County Board of Elections to put his name on the May 5 primary ballot as a Democratic candidate for Congress.

The board rejected his petition on grounds he had voted as a member of the Republican primary in 1966. The high court upheld that decision.

In other election cases, the court ruled:

—Robert E. Safford of Warren can run as a Democratic candidate for Trumbull County commissioner despite the fact his candidacy petitions were executed by two different notaries. The court said the notarizations did not mislead any signer.

—Dennis J. Kucinich of Cleveland and seven other candidates for the Democratic County Central Committee cannot have their names on the ballot because they signed their own petitions in an effort to get the minimum signatures required.

Massacre Is Reported In Cambodia

TAKEO, Cambodia (AP) — Cambodian soldiers fired repeatedly on huddled masses of Vietnamese concentration camp inmates and left more than 100 dead, survivors reported today.

Blood-spattered and wounded survivors said Cambodian troops came in four times between 8 p.m. Thursday and 5 a.m. today.

"They shot and shot and shot," said one boy, about 16, who was weeping.

Last week at least 73 were slain under similar circumstances in Prasaut.

The Takeo Vietnamese concentration camp, as the soldiers themselves call it, is one of dozens around Cambodia that contain thousands of Vietnamese residents rounded up as part of security measures in face of mounting attacks by Communist-led forces.

This camp contained more than 200 persons, including a few women and children.

Takeo is 54 miles south of Phnom Penh.

At least 13 seriously wounded Vietnamese, including a young boy, lay on the blood-caked floor of a shed in the camp with no medical attention.

Arm And Shoulder Pain

Arm and shoulder pain is a common complaint among the American people today. There are various types of shoulder and arm conditions but we find the pain can often be eliminated by tracing the affected nerves to their points of irritation in the spine and removing the cause. If you find water on the floor, don't you look to see where it is coming from or do you close the door and try to forget about it?

The bursa is a sack-like fibrous membrane that encloses a joint and keeps the socket lubricated much like your mouth is kept moist. Bursitis simply means this bursa has become inflamed which causes severe pain with some loss of movement.

Frozen shoulder is an affliction that starts with painful arm movements which is usually worse at night when inactive muscles become contracted. If neglected, this condition gradually limits normal range of movement such as combing the hair, slipping a dress over the head, or reaching up for something.

One of the most common painful shoulder and arm condition is the Scalenus Anticus Syndrome which is simply an inflammation of the brachial nerves associated with a reflex spasm of the scalenus muscle of the shoulder. This painful condition is caused by displacement of a neck vertebra or the 1st or 2nd rib. Reflex pains often extend to the upper chest, arm pit, between the shoulders, in the neck, and up back of the head. The arm gives a feeling of being heavy as if it will drop off. The arm and hand often feels cold with numbness and tingling, and weakness of grip. Such tasks as sweeping, shaving, painting, etc., may cause severe pain.

A recent patient stated he had not been able to raise his arm or get out his handkerchief in years. X-rays and an examination revealed the head of the second rib was displaced impinging a nerve. After adjusting it back to its normal position, the spasm relaxed and immediately he was able to raise his arm and put his hand in his rear pocket. He stated, "That's the most amazing thing that ever happened to me."

The chiropractic profession suggests an examination by your chiropractor to locate the cause of such conditions.

Presented in the public interest for better health through chiropractic by the Circleville Chiropractic Center under the auspices of the Central Ohio Chiropractic Association.

ell said, "It's near the S-Band antenna."

The service module contained most of the long-life oxygen and electrical power for the Apollo 13 command ship.

The explosion Monday night rendered the command vehicle useless until today when power was restored with batteries.

The astronauts discarded the service module to expose the command ship heat shield which was to protect them during the blazing re-entry through the atmosphere.

The spacemen used a tricky "push-pull" technique to separate the service module.

Lovell fired the lunar module jets to push the service section forward. Simultaneously, Swigert, in the command ship, fired explosive devices to effect separation. Lovell quickly reversed the lunar craft to back away so there would be no collision during re-entry later in the day.

The astronauts photographed the damage. The pictures could provide possible clues to the cause of the rupture.

Earlier, Swigert slipped into the command ship cabin to start the batteries and oxygen system. These operate from a separate system and are designed for use during re-entry.

OK Raises For Judges

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Atty. Gen. Paul W. Brown held today that, based on the decision of the Franklin County Common Pleas Court, municipal judges are entitled to salary increases during term.

The opinion was given to Cuyahoga County Prosecutor John T. Corrigan.

Brown pointed out that municipal judges in some 30 or more counties have been granted the increases in salary while the remaining municipal judges have not and cited the common pleas court decision in the case of Price vs. Young which held that municipal judges are entitled to the additional compensation regardless of when elected.

He said the issue "is solely constitutional and the determinations of constitutional issues are the singular and exclusive province of the courts. But he said an opinion is needed "in order to provide for uniformity of operation throughout the state."

In a companion opinion, Brown told Madison County Prosecutor James B. Patterson that considerations for a county judge are identical with the considerations for municipal judges under the same Franklin County Common Pleas Court decision.

Frozen shoulder is an affliction that starts with painful arm movements which is usually worse at night when inactive muscles become contracted. One of the most common painful shoulder and arm condition is the Scalenus Anticus Syndrome which is simply an inflammation of the brachial nerves associated with a reflex spasm of the scalenus muscle of the shoulder. This painful condition is caused by displacement of a neck vertebra or the 1st or 2nd rib. Reflex pains often extend to the upper chest, arm pit, between the shoulders, in the neck, and up back of the head. The arm gives a feeling of being heavy as if it will drop off. The arm and hand often feels cold with numbness and tingling, and weakness of grip. Such tasks as sweeping, shaving, painting, etc., may cause severe pain.

A recent patient stated he had not been able to raise his arm or get out his handkerchief in years. X-rays and an examination revealed the head of the second rib was displaced impinging a nerve. After adjusting it back to its normal position, the spasm relaxed and immediately he was able to raise his arm and put his hand in his rear pocket. He stated, "That's the most amazing thing that ever happened to me."

The chiropractic profession suggests an examination by your chiropractor to locate the cause of such conditions.

Militants Gain Seats In Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The election of Northern Ireland's two leading Protestant militants to the provincial parliament rocked the moderate government of Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark today.

The victories Thursday of the Rev. Ian Paisley and his chief lieutenant, the Rev. William Beattie, are no challenge to the one majority in the legislature.

But the switch of two rural districts to Paisley's Protestant Unionist party appeared to signal a grass roots rebellion against the government's concessions to the Roman Catholic minority.

Since last autumn's Catholic-Protestant street fighting, Chichester-Clark's government, under prodding from London, had made some progress toward satisfying Catholic complaints of discrimination in jobs, housing and voting.

Observers in London thought the militants' success might prompt waverers among the Unionist legislators to swing to the right, British Liberal party leader Jeremy Thorpe said there was a danger of fascism developing in Ulster.

Paisley announced he now plans to run for the British House of Commons, where Northern Ireland's most noticeable member is now the 22-year-old, miniskirted Catholic, Bernadette Devlin.

Book Depository Building Is Sold

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas School Book Depository building, from which a hidden rifleman killed President John F. Kennedy, has been auctioned off for $650,000.

It was bought Thursday night by Aubrey Mayhew, head of a Nashville, Tenn., recording house and a collector of Kennedy memorabilia. He said he had not decided what to do with the drab old seven-story structure but might ultimately turn it into a shrine.

Shots from a sixth floor window in the tan brick building killed Kennedy as he rode in a motorcade Nov. 22, 1963. The Warren Commission said Lee Harvey Oswald fired the bullets.

Court Refuses To Remove Lawton Name

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An equally-divided Ohio Supreme Court today refused to remove Edwin Lawton's name from the May 5 ballot as an American Independent Party candidate for governor.

The vote was 3-3.

Robert W. Annable, another AIP candidate for the post, challenged Lawton's candidacy on grounds that he swore he had not voted for a different party at a primary election in the preceding four years.

The court noted the declaration was false because Lawton, of Columbus, voted in Republican primaries in 1966 and 1968.

It denied Annable's writ, it said, because it was evenly divided on the issue.

Secretary of State Ted W. Brown earlier ruled Lawton did not come under the four-year rule because the AIP was a new political party.

The rule was upheld in another case involving Vernon D. Bible, Cincinnati, who sought to force the Hamilton County Board of Elections to put his name on the May 5 primary ballot as a Democratic candidate for Congress.

The board rejected his petition on grounds he had voted as a member of the Republican primary in 1966. The high court upheld that decision.

In other election cases, the court ruled:

—Robert E. Safford of Warren can run as a Democratic candidate for Trumbull County commissioner despite the fact his candidacy petitions were executed by two different notaries. The court said the notarizations did not mislead any signer.

—Dennis J. Kucinich of Cleveland and seven other candidates for the Democratic County Central Committee cannot have their names on the ballot because they signed their own petitions in an effort to get the minimum signatures required.

Stock Prices Slide Down

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices coasted downhill early this afternoon, with losing issues on the New York Stock Exchange leading winners by more than 2½ to 1.

At noon the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off 3.89 at 771.98.

The market had been sagging since the opening of trading. The slump may have been a reaction to some depressing news on the economic front.

The Commerce Department said today that the gross national product in real terms suffered its sharpest drop in a decade in the first quarter. The GNP represents the dollar value of the nation's output of goods and services.

At the same time, the department said, the annual rate of inflation rose to 5 per cent in the first quarter from 4½ per cent in the fourth quarter of 1969. Most high administration officials had been banking on a reduction in the rate of inflation.

Astronauts . . .

ell said, "It's near the S-Band antenna."

The service module contained most of the long-life oxygen and electrical power for the Apollo 13 command ship.

The explosion Monday night rendered the command vehicle useless until today when power was restored with batteries.

The astronauts discarded the service module to expose the command ship heat shield which was to protect them during the blazing re-entry through the atmosphere.

The spacemen used a tricky "push-pull" technique to separate the service module.

Lovell fired the lunar module jets to push the service section forward. Simultaneously, Swigert, in the command ship, fired explosive devices to effect separation. Lovell quickly reversed the lunar craft to back away so there would be no collision during re-entry later in the day.

The astronauts photographed the damage. The pictures could provide possible clues to the cause of the rupture.

Earlier, Swigert slipped into the command ship cabin to start the batteries and oxygen system. These operate from a separate system and are designed for use during re-entry.

Lovell and Haise fired the lunar craft's small jets for 23 seconds to zero in on the landing site 610 miles southeast of Samoa in the Pacific.

"Right on the money," Mission Control said of the firing.

Without the firing, Apollo 13 would have missed the target area by about 50 miles. There was no immediate word on how much the firing improved the accuracy.

At the time of the burn, Apollo 13 was 43,222 miles from earth, traveling 6,220 miles an hour.

The astronauts were on a near-perfect course that slammed them into the atmosphere 76 miles above the Pacific at 24,623 miles an hour.

Waiting to retrieve them was the helicopter carrier two Jima. The weather forecast called for broken clouds at 2,000 feet, 10 miles visibility, four foot seas and 17-mile-per-hour winds, with a slight possibility of showers.

The spacemen began the complex preparations for re-entry when Swigert wiggled through a connecting tunnel from the lunar module Aquarius to the command ship Odyssey at 6:24 a.m. to activate the batteries and set switches and circuit breakers.

OK Raises For Judges

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Atty. Gen. Paul W. Brown held today that, based on the decision of the Franklin County Common Pleas Court, municipal judges are entitled to salary increases during term. The opinion was given to Cuyahoga County Prosecutor John T. Corrigan.

Brown pointed out that municipal judges in some 30 or more counties have been granted the increases in salary while the remaining municipal judges have not and cited the common pleas court decision in the case of Price vs. Young which held that municipal judges are entitled to the additional compensation regardless of when elected.

He said the issue "is solely constitutional and the determinations of constitutional issues are the singular and exclusive province of the courts. But he said an opinion is needed "in order to provide for uniformity of operation throughout the state."

In a companion opinion, Brown told Madison County Prosecutor James B. Patterson that considerations for a county judge are identical with the considerations for municipal judges under the same Franklin County Common Pleas Court decision.

Rain Rockets Are Sinful Town
CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — In times of drought God intends men to pray, not fire rain rockets at the sky, a delegate told a provincial synod of the Nederduitse Gereformeerde Kerk, one of South Africa's three powerful Calvinist Dutch Reformed churches. He and other delegates convinced of the sinfulness of rain rockets initiated a long discussion, ended by acceptance of a resolution that the use of the rockets is not expressly forbidden by Scripture. However, the synod decided, such rockets should always be fired with a deep awareness of man's dependence on God and droughts should always be seen as a way in which God brings his people to submission.

NEW YORK (AP) — If the singer on the Merv Griffin Show Thursday night looked familiar, it's not surprising. He's David Canary of "Bonanza."

Canary plays Candy, the somewhat mysterious, somewhat satanic ranchhand to the Cartwrights.

"I want to expand the 'Bonanza' image," he said. "I'm not a Western man. I don't consider myself an action man. Let's face it, I'm really Gene Kelly inside Jack Palance's body."

He stirred his coffee and said, "I started out as a singer. That's the best kept secret in Hollywood. Every show I went on as a singer was canceled. Now I've got a break and I'm on the Merv Griffin Show."

What about NBC's own "Tonight Show?" He shrugged. "Johnny Carson's people turned me down five times. NBC couldn't get me on the subway."

Canary was silent for a moment, then added, "But I understand the psychology. They don't know I can sing. And fourth lead in 'Bonanza.' In the city who needs Bonanza?"

Everything physical about Canary belies the fact that he is a singer. The looks, the big rawboned body. He made the Pop Warner All-America football team in 1960 and later was drafted by the Denver Broncos after graduation from the University of Cincinnati.

Instead, he tried his hand at off-Broadway musical comedy. He landed a part in "Hi, Paisano" and met Julie Anderson, a petite brunette, who was in "Little Mary Sunshine." Canary's play lasted two glorious days, but they courted during a succession of other plays and were married on the West Coast.

Two years in the Army came next, after which he joined a road company of "The Fantasticks" in San Francisco. That led to a part in ABC's "Peyton Place," which in turn led to a featured role in the movie "Hombre." Executive producer David Dortort saw the film and signed him for NBC's "Bonanza" three years ago.

"The concept of the role has changed, primarily due to the anti-violence thing," he said. "Candy originally was a violent character. I've gained something because they've given me roles that require more acting, that have more range to them."

"But I miss the old incisiveness. I liked the contrast to the Cartwrights. Now I'm Candy Cartwright."

Candy said he wanted to return to the stage and also to make some films, but in the meantime "my desire is to stay with 'Bonanza' as long as possible, then split."

Only 18 Identify Bill Of Rights

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Of 199 persons approached in Corpus Christi, Tex., recently, only 18 could correctly identify a document as a replica of the Bill of Rights.

More than half of the people approached on the street in an experiment by the Corpus Christi Caller-Times refused to sign a replica of the Bill of Rights.

Norman Isaacs, Ky., Courier-Journal executive editor told of the experiment to a recent convention of the Texas Daily Newspaper Association.

Isaacs said 56 persons signed the petition although more than a third of these didn't bother to read it. Of the 143 who declined, Isaacs said 54 per cent read and refused to sign the petition. The others wouldn't read or wouldn't sign, he said.

The local drivers have been demanding $2 hourly pay increases over the three-year period, which would amount to about a 50 per cent boost.

Deputies said about 100 men gathered at a truck stop in Richfield hurled rocks at the trucks, most of them from the Pacific Inter-mountain Express (PIE) lines. Some windows were broken, but no drivers were reported injured.

Licavoli Makes Another Bid For Freedom

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Thomas "Yonnie" Licavoli, one-time Toledo mobster who has spent 35 years in Ohio prisons for four gangland murders, makes another bid for freedom today.

He was to appear in U.S. District Court to appeal his life sentence on a writ of habeas corpus filed by Boston attorney F. Lee Bailey. Judge Joseph Kinneary was assigned the case.

Licavoli's last try for freedom failed a year ago this month when the Ohio Parole Board rejected his request for parole. Gov. James Rhodes commuted his first-degree murder conviction to second-degree murder in January, 1969, making him eligible for parole.

Licavoli entered the penitentiary Nov. 10, 1934, convicted of the slaying of three bootleggers and the girl friend of one of them.

Troubles encountered by the Apollo 13 lunar spacecraft prevented astronaut Armstrong from attending. But he gave the museum project a boost by sending a check for $5,000.

In connection with the groundbreaking, a model of the domed museum received its first public showing Thursday.

Architects Ferdinand and Carl Freytag of Sidney said the museum will include a "moon room" where visitors will directly experience infinity and the effects of space travel, a space theatre and several exhibitions of the space program.

Armstrong's mementoes, including several items from his youth and a number of gifts presented to the astronaut and his family by various officials and governments, also will be displayed.

A small private plane in which Armstrong learned to fly will be displayed inside the museum, while the jet airplane which Armstrong used for his moon trip is to be exhibited outside.

Licavoli Makes Another Bid For Freedom

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Thomas "Yonnie" Licavoli, one-time Toledo mobster who has spent 35 years in Ohio prisons for four gangland murders, makes another bid for freedom today.

He was to appear in U.S. District Court to appeal his life sentence on a writ of habeas corpus filed by Boston attorney F. Lee Bailey. Judge Joseph Kinneary was assigned the case.

Licavoli's last try for freedom failed a year ago this month when the Ohio Parole Board rejected his request for parole.

Gov. James Rhodes commuted his first-degree murder conviction to second-degree murder in January, 1969, making him eligible for parole.

Licavoli entered the penitentiary Nov. 10, 1934, convicted of the slaying of three bootleggers and the girl friend of one of them.

Troubles encountered by the Apollo 13 lunar spacecraft prevented astronaut Armstrong from attending. But he gave the museum project a boost by sending a check for $5,000.

In connection with the groundbreaking, a model of the domed museum received its first public showing Thursday.

Architects Ferdinand and Carl Freytag of Sidney said the museum will include a "moon room" where visitors will directly experience infinity and the effects of space travel, a space theatre and several exhibitions of the space program.

Cleveland Area Still Feels Effect Of Trucking Strike

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
With more than 19,000 workers off the job and the motor freight industry at a virtual standstill, the Cleveland area is feeling more and more the effects of the 17-day-old wildcat strike by Teamsters Union members.

The Ohio State Employment Service said Thursday 13,000 persons have applied for unemployment compensation, a record as a result of the strike that has forced the shutdown of assembly lines in many factories.

In addition, 6,000 truck drivers are idle despite urgings from their leaders that they return to work. The drivers are unhappy with a tentative national agreement worked out in Washington which would give them a $1.10 hourly pay boost over a three-year period.

One small industrialist said the strike "is hurting us badly" and urged that the government "step in and end it."
Larger employers also are feeling the pinch. The Ford Motor Co. furloughed 3,000 workers at its Brook Park engine plants Thursday. They will be off the job until Monday because of parts shortages.

The Cuyahoga County Welfare Department has opened an emergency office in the Cleveland Convention Center to hand out emergency food orders and provide other assistance for Teamsters Union members out of work.
Defiant truck drivers who demonstrated at the offices of Teamsters Local 407 were told by Secretary-Treasurer Thomas E. Lee that there is no extra money to pay the kind of increase the truckers are demanding.

The local drivers have been demanding $2 hourly pay increases over the three-year period, which would amount to about a 50 per cent boost.
"I want to see our men get as much as they can, but I must be completely honest," Lee said. "There just isn't $2 to be had. Where is it going to come from?"
More incidents of violence were reported in Summit County, where some 3,000 truckers are on strike. Sheriff's deputies said a barrage of rocks turned back 30 trucks heading for the Ohio Turnpike Thursday.
Deputies said about 100 men gathered at a truck stop in Richfield hurled rocks at the trucks, most of them from the Pacific Inter-mountain Express (PIE) lines. Some windows were broken, but no drivers were reported injured.

Rain Rockets Are Sinful Instrument

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — In times of drought God intends men to pray, not fire rain rockets at the sky, a delegate told a provincial synod of the Nederduitse Gereformeerde Kerk, one of South Africa's three powerful Calvinist Dutch Reformed churches. He and other delegates convinced of the sinfulness of rain rockets initiated a long discussion, ended by acceptance of a resolution that the use of the rockets is not expressly forbidden by Scripture. However, the synod decided, such rockets should always be fired with a deep awareness of man's dependence on God and droughts should always be seen as a way in which God brings his people to submission.

NEW YORK (AP) — If the singer on the Merv Griffin Show Thursday night looked familiar, it's not surprising. He's David Canary of "Bonanza."

Canary plays Candy, the somewhat mysterious, somewhat satanic ranchhand to the Cartwrights.

"I want to expand the 'Bonanza' image," he said. "I'm not a Western man. I don't consider myself an action man. Let's face it, I'm really Gene Kelly inside Jack Palance's body."

He stirred the coffee and said, "I started out as a singer. That's the best kept secret in Hollywood. Every show I went on as a singer was canceled. Now I've got a break and I'm on the Merv Griffin Show."

What about NBC's own "Tonight Show?" He shrugged. "Johnny Carson's people turned me down five times. NBC couldn't get me on the sub-way."

Canary was silent for a moment, then added, "But I understand the psychology. They don't know I can sing. And fourth lead in 'Bonanza.' In the city who needs Bonanza?"

Everything physical about Canary belies the fact that he is a singer. The looks, the big raven-haired body. He made the Pop Warner All-America football team in 1960 and later was drafted by the Denver Broncos after graduation from the University of Cincinnati.

Instead, he tried his hand at off-Broadway musical comedy. He landed a part in "Hi, Pansy" and met Julie Anderson, a petite brunette, who was in "Little Mary Sunshine." Canary's play lasted two glorious days, but they courted during a succession of other plays and were married on the West Coast.

Two years in the Army came next, after which he joined a road company of "The Fantasticks" in San Francisco. That led to a part in ABC's "Peyton Place," which in turn led to a featured role in the movie "Hombre." Executive producer David Dortort saw the film and signed him for NBC's "Bonanza" three years ago.

"The concept of the role has changed, primarily due to the anti-violence thing," he said. "Candy originally was a violent character. I've gained something because they've given me roles that require more acting, that have more range to them."

"But I miss the old incisiveness. I liked the contrast to the Cartwrights. Now I'm Candy Cartwright."

Canary said he wanted to return to the stage and also to make some films, but in the meantime "my desire is to stay with 'Bonanza' as long as possible, then split."

Only 18 Identify Bill Of Rights

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Of 199 persons approached in Corpus Christi, Tex., recently, only 18 could correctly identify a document as a replica of the Bill of Rights.

More than half of the people approached on the street in an experiment by the Corpus Christi Caller-Times refused to sign a replica of the Bill of Rights.

Norman Isaacs, Ky., Courier-Journal executive editor told of the experiment to a recent convention of the Texas Daily Newspaper Association.

Isaacs said 56 persons signed the petition although more than a third of these didn't bother to read it. Of the 143 who declined, Isaacs said 54 per cent read and refused to sign the petition. The others wouldn't read or wouldn't sign, he said.

Wapakoneta Starts Work On Museum

WAPAKONETA, Ohio (AP) — Viola Armstrong turned a shovelful of earth in a cornfield near here Thursday to break ground for a museum honoring her famous astronaut son, first man to set foot on the moon.

Officials said construction of the $1 million Neil Armstrong Museum should be completed in about 18 months.

Assisting Mrs. Armstrong in the ceremony, while about 300 hometown folks looked on, were her husband, Stephen, and Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Troubles encountered by the Apollo 13 lunar spacecraft prevented astronaut Armstrong from attending. But he gave the museum project a boost by sending a check for $5,000.

In connection with the groundbreaking, a model of the domed museum received its first public showing Thursday.

Intercepting The Mail

Citizens who are tired of having their mailboxes filled with advertising material they do not want and do not read will be pleased by the action taken by the Federal Trade Commission against a large seller of mailing lists.

Lists of names of persons who have responded to mail order advertisements are traded widely among companies specializing in mail solicitations. There is nothing illegal in this practice, although it can result in a household being deluged with mail for years by retailers and mail order houses.

In its first action ever against third class mail users, the FTC accused a New York-based firm of mailing four million questionnaires which promised "an opportunity to win fabulous gifts" to those who returned the completed forms. Nothing was said in the promotional material about mailing lists being compiled from the returns.

The practice was unfair, said the FTC, because the company did not "disclose clearly and conspicuously" the purpose of the questionnaire. Future mailings, ruled the commission, must state clearly the business of the forms. In addition, those four million who already have received the mailings must be informed of the intent and be provided the opportunity "by a returnable, postage-paid form" supplied by the company to say whether they wish to remain on the list.

Advertisers have a legitimate right to use third class mailing privileges to sell their goods and services, and most recipients have no objection to receiving such unsolicited mail. But the privilege does not extend to those who would mislead the public on the purpose of their mailings. The FTC is performing a service by enforcing that point.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Annual meetings used to be pleasant affairs, both corporate officers and shareholders generally will agree, at least when the profits were satisfactory.

Attendance at the annual get-together was one of the rites of spring, like going to the opening baseball game or raking the lawn or cleaning out the cottage. Poor as they were, box lunches were consumed with gusto.

Companies that really wished to impress their shareholders held extravagant all-day affairs under enormous striped canopies that billowed like sails above the manicured lawn of the latest plant addition.

Routine business was rushed through before a bored audience of old timers. Nobody criticized. About the worst the board of General Electric or General Motors had to face was the badgering of Wilma Soss or the Brothers Gilbert or other professional shareholders who made the circuit of annual meetings.

Annual meetings this year will not be picnics, for shareholders have become activists in behalf of causes that include peace, clean environment, women's rights, minority rights, stockholder rights, even leftist rights.

It may not be wise to turn off the milk.

War protesters have let it be known they intend to disrupt meetings of companies holding military contracts. Groups concerned with the environment plan to put profit-minded corporate officers on the spot, to test their sincerity.

Name any topic and you'll likely find a shareholder group organized to promote it. While the emphasis still may remain on profits and losses, discussion of social problems will rule many meetings this year.

And perhaps next year and for many years after. Corporate officers are aware that pressure groups have discovered that shares of stock are tickets to annual meetings. A trend is developing.

Seven individuals who call themselves The Project On Corporate Responsibility, Inc. purchased at least 12 shares of common stock early this year and managed to put up two proposals for voting by General Motors shareholders.

This and other groups have provoked GM into placing newspaper ads that pose questions such as "Does GM Care About Cleaner Air?" and which answer, "You bet we do!"

The Corporate Responsibility group's proposals, if passed, would create a committee to represent special interest groups and increase the size of the board of directors by three.

Purpose of the increased board, in the words of GM, would be to place "three representatives elected not on the basis of their interest in the success of General Motors but rather on the basis of their sympathy with the special interests of the sponsors."

Management opposes both measures, of course. It believes the purpose of the committee "is to harass the corporation and its management to promote the particular economic and social views" of the sponsors.

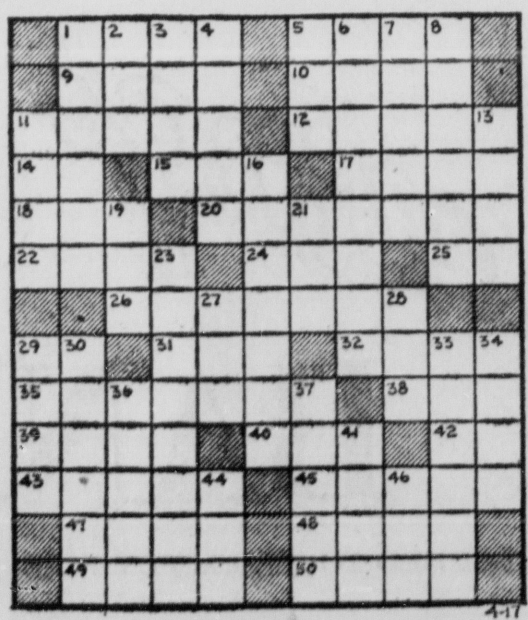

Times have changed . . . very suddenly.

Laff-A-Day

"They say this diamond has a curse on it."

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A LANDLADY assured a new boarder that his room contained a genuine feather bed. At two in the morning he hobbled to her door and awakened her with, "Madam, you'd better come upstairs and help me look for the feather."

Fiendishly clever, some of these London pub proprietors! One of them has invented a drink he calls a "Clothes Brush." When he serves this concoction to a customer, he puts an actual stiff-bristled clothes brush beside it. The customer usually downs the drink in a single gulp, then falls flat on his face. A few minutes later he comes to, gravely brushes the dust off his clothes with the brush, pays his tab, and goes about his business.

My informant, Tom Driberg, further avers that in a Soho pub where he was watching the clothes-brush routine in its finest flowering, one patron, at least, had the strength of mind to order something else. "Just whip up something long and cold and full of gin," he commanded. The man alongside him promptly volunteered, "Take my wife here."

From the notebooks of Col. Francis Duffy:

1. Ever stop to consider that before television, nobody knew what a headache looked like?
2. The time to tackle a minor problem is before he grows up.
3. Hear the story of the elephant who went on a diet? Now he's eating like a horse.
4. Many a girl has made it to the top because her dress didn't.

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Can the lines in the finger and hands tell a person's future? What can they show? I was frightened to death by a palm reader who told my fortune at a party.

Mrs. R.N.F., Illinois

Dear Mrs. F.: It is said that you have been caused so much misery by one who, unscientifically, takes the responsibility of guessing your future. I know that I will be bombarded by the "believers" who will send me limitless case reports of "great diagnosis of disease," speculations about the fate of the world, a person's longevity and the exact time to make crucial decisions. Put me down as a non-believer who accuses them of scientific fraud and often financial exploitation.

Whether or not you paid for that advice in money is not important. You paid a heavy price in emotional distress and that is far more expensive than an outlay of cash.

The science of dermatoglyphics is a highly complex one because every human being has his own set of fingerprints, with ridges and furrows that last throughout his lifetime. The term was coined by Dr. Harold Cummins about thirty years ago, and the study was based on work done by Sir Francis Galton about the turn of the century.

Although some physical conditions show characteristic creases in the skin, none of these furrows can be used to tell fortunes, life expectancy or the possibility of disease. You have paid an emotional penalty for allowing yourself to be victimized.

Can a false pregnancy happen in a human being? I know that animals sometimes go through it.

Mrs. G.H., Nevada

Dear Mrs. H.: The condition of false pregnancy is known as a phantom pregnancy or pseudocyesis. It can and does occur in humans. When it does, almost all of the usual symptoms and signs of early pregnancy may accompany it: morning nausea, enlargement and sensitivity of the breast, cessation of the menstrual period, gain of weight and, later, abdominal enlargement.

Sometimes the false pregnancy continues almost up to the supposed time of delivery. Almost always this unhappy situation occurs in women who desperately want a child and who have been unable to conceive. Fortunately, the condition is exceedingly rare. When the doctor is sure that a false pregnancy exists, he will seek the guidance of a psychiatrist in the handling of the problem until the patient herself can be referred for help. Meanwhile, the woman is made to understand the psychological mechanism involved. It takes great insight by the doctor to give her the gentle support she needs.

What is a typhoid carrier? Can he be free of the disease?

Mr. D.Y., Georgia

Dear Mr. Y.: A person who is now in excellent health may have had typhoid fever and recovered from it. He still may harbor the typhoid bacillus, usually in the gall bladder and can cause contamination of food and water and thus give the disease to others.

Too hot coffee and tea can cause severe burns of the tongue and mouth.

TODAY In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, April 17, the 107th day of 1970. There are 258 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1521, Martin Luther was excommunicated from the Roman Catholic Church.

On this date: In 1790, Benjamin Franklin died in Philadelphia at the age of 84.

In 1861, Virginia seceded from the Union.

In 1917, a bill was introduced in the U.S. Senate to adopt daylight saving time. The bill was defeated.

In 1941, in World War II, Yugoslavia surrendered to Germany, but partisan forces continued to wage guerrilla warfare.

In 1943, U.S. bombers hit Palermo, Sicily.

Ten years ago: South Africa was reported considering sealing off its borders to cut off the escape of political refugees.

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

One of the more shortsighted proposals of the Johnson Administration was to put a forcible clamp on American tourism by taxing travel expenditures in excess of $8 a day. The motive behind the proposal was good; our balance of payments was running heavily against us, and the U.S. dollar certainly needed support. But when you forbid people to spend money on travel it is taken as an outrageous curtailment of personal freedom. Moreover, it deepens the amount of ignorance in the world, and it provokes ugly reprisals. Fortunately, the outcry compelled the Johnson Administration to back down.

Having lost the battle to keep American cash at home, the Johnson advisers expressed some hopes that the gap in our balance of payments might be narrowed by encouraging foreigners to visit the U.S. However, the lures offered to the foreign tourist were perfunctory, to say the least. We are getting a far better effort from the Nixon Administration, which has used imagination to attract visitors from overseas.

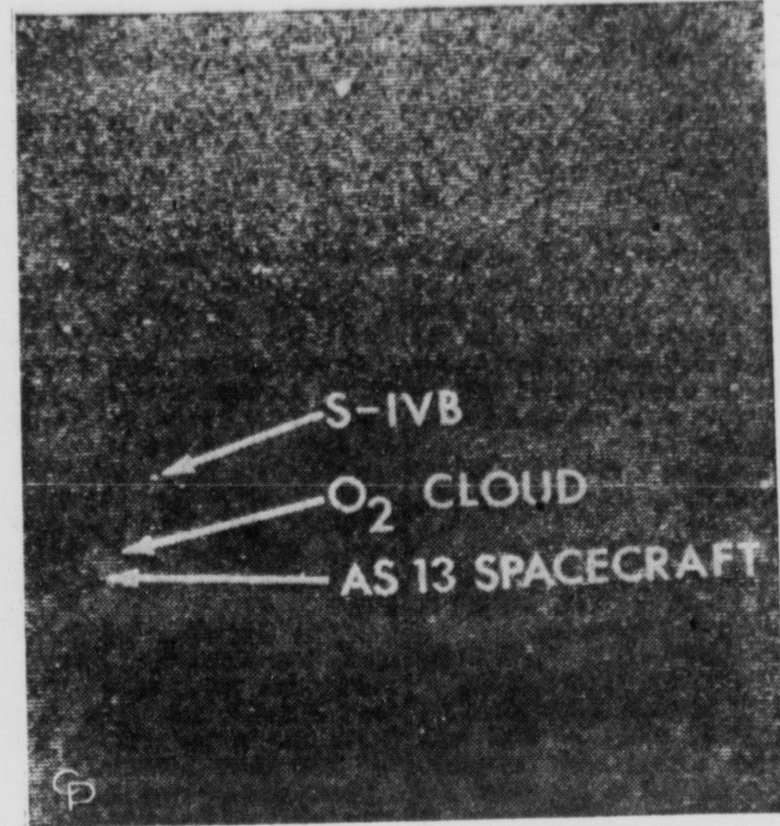

The man in charge of the Nixon program is C. Langhorne Washburn, a prominent Republican money-raiser who was once in the helicopter business. If we had a Minister of Tourism, Mr. Washburn would be the man. As head of the United States Travel Service, Mr. Washburn does all the formal things, such as visiting Expo '70 in Osaka, Japan, and supervising the baptismal rites connected with installing the six-story, air-supported sphere — the "balloon" — which is there to advertise U.S. tourist attractions. From Japan Mr. Washburn went on to Australia, the next port of call for the "balloon" when Japan's Expo '70 is over. Mr. Washburn expects a big influx of trans-Pacific visitors to our country. Last year 133,000 Japanese visited the U.S. This represented an increase of 39 per cent over the previous year, as compared to a 3.3 increase from the United Kingdom and an 11 per cent jump from West Germany. Japan is now fifth in sending tourists to the U.S., following Canada, Mexico, the U.K., and West Germany in that order.

The Japanese want to inspect U.S. factories — and some 6,000 plants are catering to this desire by arranging for plant tours. This is one example of the new ingenuity behind our drive for tourists. Some of Mr. Washburn's ideas take a fanciful turn, but they are none the less practical for all that. He hopes to buy up the Pullman cars and place them in the national parks and on the Indian reservations, where they would make good tourist quarters (with bears looking in at the car windows) and, at the same time, would become a magnet for railroad buffs. Another Washburn suggestion is to anchor a big ocean liner off Newport, R. I., to provide ringside seats on a floating hotel for the yachting cup races. Then there is Cape Kennedy: Mr. Washburn thinks our space rocket ground installations could be made into a truly great lure.

The drive is on to abolish the bureaucratic annoyances that discourage tourists. Mr. Washburn hopes the Treasury Department will let foreigners buy American automobiles and take them back home with no penalty after they have piled up some U.S. mileage. He wants to get rid of visas on a reciprocal basis. The U.S. now does only nine per cent of the world's international convention business. Mr. Washburn wants to change all that by providing scientific equipment facilities in U.S. convention halls. As for cracking language barriers, there will be "golden girls" to provide multi-lingual help at the international airports. America is already offering cheap travel: twenty-three domestic airlines now give a fifty per cent discount for travel within the forty-eight contiguous states and Alaska to persons residing outside the western hemisphere. And ten regional airlines offer a twenty-one-day ticket for $150 that will let an international visitor see as many of five hundred cities as he can, from New York to Kotzebue, Alaska. A Senate bill authorizes $15 million for tourist promotion. It could be money well used if it helps reverse the situation which has us spending $2 billion more on travel abroad than foreigners have paid for travel here. As Mr. Washburn says, "you win by addition, not subtraction, in business."

PIN-POINTS IN THE SKY — This telescopic photo shows the Apollo 13 spacecraft in translunar trajectory after a mysterious explosion crippled the service module. Arrows point to the spacecraft, an oxygen cloud and the expended Saturn V third stage. The oxygen cloud was released from ruptured tanks. The picture was made at Houston's Space Center by a 16-inch telescope with a television camera mounted in place of the eyepiece.

'See No Evil'

By BOB THOMAS

AP Television-Movie Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It's almost as though a member of the College of Cardinals gossiped about a meeting inside the Sistine Chapel. That's the way longtime film observers must feel about a new book written from the inside of the industry's censorship agency.

The book is wryly called "See No Evil," and it's written by a 25-year veteran of the Production Code office, Jack Vizzard. He spared no one—Eric Johnston, Jack Valenti, the head censors, money-hungry producers, sensation-seeking directors, even himself.

The inside peek of censors at work is fascinating. They were no prudes—far from it. The language of their trade, in fact, is so raunchy that they themselves might be banned in Boston, along with some of the movies they reluctantly passed.

The history of the Production Code—its rise and ultimate fall—is delineated in "See No Evil." The system of self-censorship was instituted by film czar Will Hays and enforced by the rough Irish fist of Joe Breen, a scrapper who kept the producers in line by threats and cajolery.

The downfall of the Code began during the reign of Hay's successor, Eric Johnston: censorship virtually ended during the recent tenure of Texas Jack Valenti. Some critics have hailed this development as freeing film makers from Victorian restraints.

Author Vizzard doesn't seem to share the view. He writes: "The Movie Industry has an original form, sometimes resembling Art, sometimes the Carnival. But it was filled with dynamisms, the likes of which the world has seldom seen. Now, however, it is beginning to become turned in on itself, and is displaying a morbid tendency to experiment in bizarre techniques and bizarre material. It is not peaking out so much as 'freaking out.'"

The repealing of the Code was not a single event, as with the 18th Amendment; it was rather a series of happenings that generally involved individual films.

The beginning may be dated from Otto Preminger's "The Moon Is Blue" of 1953. It seemed like a harmless little sex farce, but Preminger insisted on including taboo words such as "virgin," "seduce" and "pregnant." A Code seal was refused, but the movie was successful, anyway.

The fate of the Code itself was sealed by "The Moon Is Blue." But the end was years in coming.

Other landmarks were "Baby Doll," "Heaven Knows, Mr. Allison," "Lolita," "Cleopatra," "Tom Jones," "Who's Afraid of Virginia Wolf," "Alfie," "Blowup," "Hurry, Sundown," "The Pawnbroker" and "Charlie Bubbles."

By 1970, anything goes. You name it, and you can see and hear it on the wide screen in blazing color. Said otime boss Jack Warner: "The studios now have clean toilets and dirty movies."

Vizzard quotes Arnold Toynbee that of 211 civilizations that died, only two were conquered from without. Vizzard adds: "All the other crumbled and fell apart from within. The dying begins when the populace no longer cares."

Intercepting The Mail

Citizens who are tired of having their mailboxes filled with advertising material they do not want and do not read will be pleased by the action taken by the Federal Trade Commission against a large seller of mailing lists.

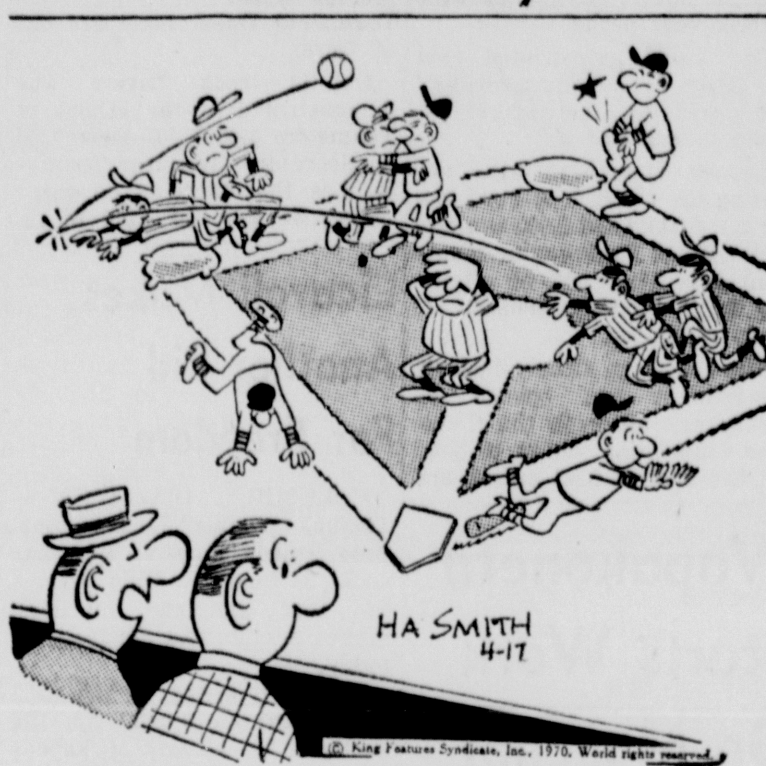

Lists of names of persons who have responded to mail order advertisements are traded widely among companies specializing in mail solicitations. There is nothing illegal in this practice, although it can result in a household being deluged with mail for years by retailers and mail order houses.

In its first action ever against third class mail users, the FTC accused a New York-based firm of mailing four million questionnaires which promised "an opportunity to win fabulous gifts" to those who returned the completed forms. Nothing was said in the promotional material about mailing lists being compiled from the returns.

The practice was unfair, said the FTC, because the company did not "disclose clearly and conspicuously" the purpose of the questionnaire. Future mailings, ruled the commission, must state clearly the business of the forms. In addition, those four million who already have received the mailings must be informed of the intent and be provided the opportunity "by a returnable, postage-paid form" supplied by the company to say whether they wish to remain on the list.

Advertisers have a legitimate right to use third class mailing privileges to sell their goods and services, and most recipients have no objection to receiving such unsolicited mail. But the privilege does not extend to those who would mislead the public on the purpose of their mailings. The FTC is performing a service by enforcing that point.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A LANDLADY assured a new boarder that his room contained a genuine feather bed. At two in the morning he hobbled to her door and awakened her with, "Madam, you'd better come upstairs and help me look for the feather."

Fiendishly clever, some of these London pub proprietors! One of them has invented a drink he calls a "Clothes Brush." When he serves this concoction to a customer, he puts an actual stiff-bristled clothes brush beside it. The customer usually downs the drink in a single gulp, then falls flat on his face. A few minutes later he comes to, gravely brushes the dust off his clothes with the brush, pays his tab, and goes about his business.

My informant, Tom Driberg, further avers that in a Soho pub where he was watching the clothes-brush routine in its finest flowering, one patron, at least, had the strength of mind to order something else. "Just whip up something long and cold and full of gin," he commanded. The man alongside him promptly volunteered, "Take my wife here."

From the notebooks of Col. Francis Duffy:

1. Ever stop to consider that before television, nobody knew what a headache looked like?
2. The time to tackle a minor problem is before he grows up.
3. Hear the story of the elephant who went on a diet? Now he's eating like a horse.
4. Many a girl has made it to the top because her dress didn't.

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Can the lines in the finger and hands tell a person's future? What can they show? I was frightened to death by a palm reader who told my fortune at a party.

Mrs. R.N.F., Illinois
Dear Mrs. F.: It is sad that you have been caused so much misery by one who, unscientifically, takes the responsibility of guessing your future. I know that I will be bombarded by the "believers" who will send me limitless case reports of "great diagnosis of disease," speculations about the fate of the world, a person's longevity and the exact time to make crucial decisions. Put me down as a non-believer who accuses them of scientific fraud and often financial exploitation. Whether or not you paid for that advice in money is not important. You paid a heavy price in emotional distress and that is far more expensive than an outlay of cash.

The science of dermatoglyphics is a highly complex one because every human being has his own set of fingerprints, with ridges and furrows that last throughout his lifetime. The term was coined by Dr. Harold Cummins about thirty years ago, and the study was based on work done by Sir Francis Galton about the turn of the century.

Although some physical conditions show characteristic creases in the skin, none of these furrows can be used to tell fortunes, life expectancy or the possibility of disease. You have paid an emotional penalty for allowing yourself to be victimized.

Can a false pregnancy happen in a human being? I know that animals sometimes go through it.

Mrs. G.H., Nevada
Dear Mrs. H.: The condition of false pregnancy is known as a phantom pregnancy or pseudocyesis. It can and does occur in humans. When it does, almost all of the usual symptoms and signs of early pregnancy may accompany it: morning nausea, enlargement and sensitivity of the breast, cessation of the menstrual period, gain of weight and, later, abdominal enlargement.

Sometimes the false pregnancy continues almost up to the supposed time of delivery. Almost always this unhappy situation occurs in women who desperately want a child and who have been unable to conceive. Fortunately, the condition is exceedingly rare. When the doctor is sure that a false pregnancy exists, he will

Bringing Visitors To U.S.

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

One of the more shortsighted proposals of the Johnson Administration was to put a forcible clamp on American tourism by taxing travel expenditures in excess of $8 a day. The motive behind the proposal was good; our balance of payments was running heavily against us, and the U.S. dollar certainly needed support. But when you forbid people to spend money on travel it is taken as an outrageous curtailment of personal freedom. Moreover, it deepens the amount of ignorance in the world, and it provokes ugly reprisals. Fortunately, the outcry compelled the Johnson Administration to back down.

Having lost the battle to keep American cash at home, the Johnson advisers expressed some hopes that the gap in our balance of payments might be narrowed by encouraging foreigners to visit the U.S. However, the lures offered to the foreign tourist were perfunctory, to say the least. We are getting a far better effort from the Nixon Administration, which has used imagination to attract visitors from overseas.

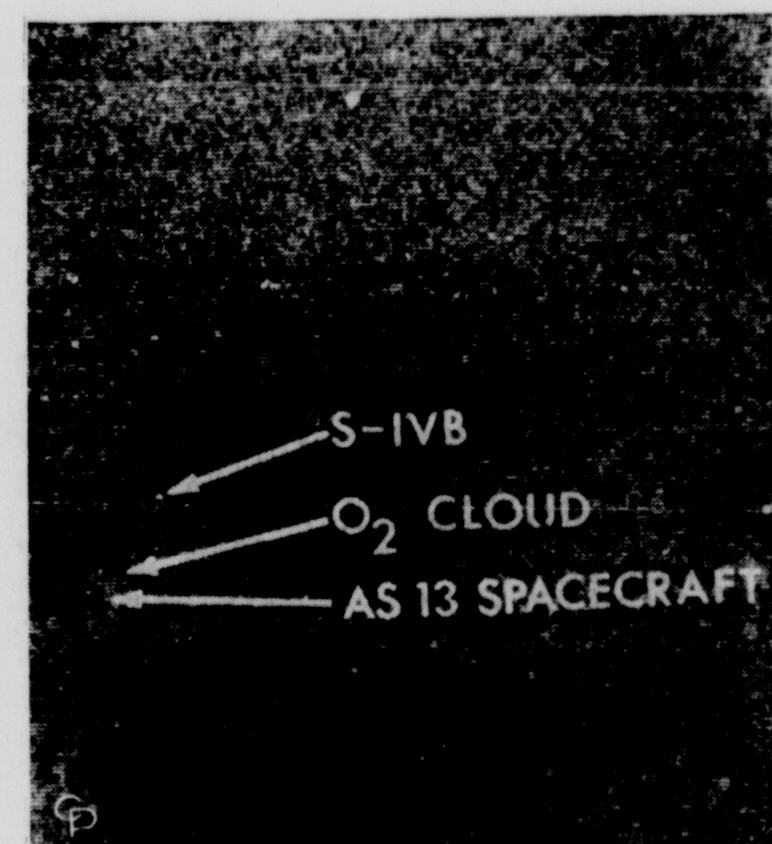

The man in charge of the Nixon program is C. Langhorne Washburn, a prominent Republican money-raiser who was once in the helicopter business. If we had a Minister of Tourism, Mr. Washburn would be the man. As head of the United States Travel Service, Mr. Washburn does all the formal things, such as visiting Expo '70 in Osaka, Japan, and supervising the baptismal rites connected with installing the six-story, air-supported sphere — the "balloon" — which is there to advertise U.S. tourist attractions. From Japan Mr. Washburn went on to Australia, the next port of call for the "balloon" when Japan's Expo '70 is over. Mr. Washburn expects a big influx of trans-Pacific visitors to our country. Last year 133,000 Japanese visited the U.S. This represented an increase of 39 per cent over the previous year, as compared to a 3.3 increase from the United Kingdom and an 11 per cent jump from West Germany. Japan is now fifth in sending tourists to the U.S., following Canada, Mexico, the U.K., and West Germany in that order.

The Japanese want to inspect U.S. factories — and some 6,000 plants are catering to this desire by arranging for plant tours. This is one example of the new ingenuity behind our drive for tourists. Some of Mr. Washburn's ideas take a fanciful turn, but they are none the less practical for all that. He hopes to buy up the railroads' stock of unused Pullman cars and place them in the national parks and on the Indian reservations, where they would make good tourist quarters (with bears looking in at the car windows) and, at the same time, would become a magnet for railroad buffs. Another Washburn suggestion is to anchor a big ocean liner off Newport, R. I., to provide ringside seats on a floating hotel for the yachting cup races. Then there is Cape Kennedy: Mr. Washburn thinks our space rocket ground installations could be made into a truly great lure.

The drive is on to abolish the bureaucratic annoyances that discourage tourists. Mr. Washburn hopes the Treasury Department will let foreigners buy American automobiles and take them back home with no penalty after they have piled up some U.S. mileage. He wants to get rid of visas on a reciprocal basis. The U.S. now does only nine per cent of the world's international convention business. Mr. Washburn wants to change all that by providing scientific equipment facilities in U.S. convention halls. As for cracking language barriers, there will be "golden girls" to provide multi-lingual help at the international airports. America is already offering cheap travel: twenty-three domestic airlines now give a fifty per cent discount for travel within the forty-eight contiguous states and Alaska to persons residing outside the western hemisphere. And ten regional airlines offer a twenty-one-day ticket for $150 that will let a international visitor see as many of five hundred cities as he can, from New York to Ketchikan, Alaska. A Senate bill authorizes $15 million for tourist promotion. It could be money well used if it helps reverse the situation which has us spending $2 billion more on travel abroad than foreigners have paid for travel here. As Mr. Washburn says, "you win by addition, not subtraction, in business."

'See No Evil'

By BOB THOMAS

AP Television-Movie Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It's almost as though a member of the College of Cardinals gossiped about a meeting inside the Sistine Chapel. That's the way longtime film observers must feel about a new book written from the inside of the industry's censorship agency.

The book is wryly called "See No Evil," and it's written by a 25-year veteran of the Production Code office, Jack Vizzard. He spared no one — Eric Johnston, Jack Valenti, the head censors, money-hungry producers, sensation-seeking directors, even himself.

The inside peek of censors at work is fascinating. They were no prudes — far from it. The language of their trade, in fact, is so raunchy that they themselves might be banned in Boston, along with some of the movies they reluctantly passed.

The history of the Production Code — its rise and ultimate fall — is delineated in "See No Evil." The system of self-censorship was instituted by film czar Will Hays and enforced by the rough Irish fist of Joe Breen, a scrapper who kept the producers in line by threats and cajolery.

The Early Church

THE RAPID GROWTH OF THE FIRST CHURCH

Scripture—Acts 2:43-6.

By R. H. RAMSEY
TODAY'S lesson covers a great deal of material, far more than can be dealt with in detail, so we will discuss only the highlights.

The concluding verses of Acts 2 give us insight into the first church. There was harmony, joy and a great sense of the presence of God. Goods were shared voluntarily, and those who had possessions willingly sold them so the needs of the brethren could be met. They worshiped in the temple and in private, and shared meals in each others' homes. This type of public and private behavior earned the sympathy, interest and respect of the people and gained a considerable number of converts.

Near the end of His earthly ministry Christ had promised that the early Christians would have the truthfulness of their gospel preaching confirmed by signs and wonders. The first of these miracles was the healing of the lame man.

A beggar, paralyzed from birth, approached Peter and hearin the following day. At the hearing they were not accused of anything, but were asked by what power or authority they had healed the lame man who now stood with them.

Peter and John spoke boldly, declaring the resurrection of Jesus who had been crucified and whom God had raised from the dead, and proclaimed salvation in His name and His alone.

The Sanhedrin could find no law which Peter and John had broken. They had healed a lame man, and could hardly be punished for doing a good deed for that would arouse the people on the side of the apostles. In the end they decided to threaten Peter and John with punishment, forbid them to speak more of Jesus of Nazareth and turn them loose.

Replying to the verdict, Peter left it up to them whether the apostles should obey the Sanhedrin or God. Yet in their minds the question was already settled. They would obey God. "For we cannot but speak of things which we have seen and heard."

GOLDEN TEXT

"And we are his witnesses of these things; and so is also the Holy Ghost, whom God hath given to them that obey him."—Acts 5:32.

John as they entered the Temple and asked for alms. Instead of giving him money, Peter pulled him to his feet and commanded him, in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, to walk. As he stood, strength entered into his feet and ankles. Soon he was leaping about and praising God for his remarkable realization of health. Peter seized the opportunity to preach his second sermon.

First he rebuked the onlookers for marveling at the miracle, for many of them had seen similar miracles performed by Jesus, whom they had denied and crucified. He was the Prince of Life, residing in glory and would return and restore all things, as the prophets had predicted. And he called upon them to "repent and be converted" in order to receive salvation with sincere faith in Christ and joyous acceptance of His atoning work.

Both Peter and John were arrested and imprisoned to await a hearing before the Sanhedrin. Based on copyrighted outlines produced by the Divisions of Christian Education, National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., and used by permission.

Free again, Peter and John returned to the believers and related their experience. When they had finished, the company lifted their voices to God in praise, thanksgiving and prayer.

The apostles had no intention of obeying the Sanhedrin's order and continued their preaching and healing, most frequently on the porch of the Temple. In the second clash with the rationalistic Sadducees, the ecclesiastical authorities had the entire band of apostles arrested and locked up overnight, intending to take more drastic action the following day. During the night, however, an angel of the Lord opened the prison doors and released the apostles, telling them to return to the Temple and continue their work.

Again they were arrested and brought before the high court. This time, however, a man named Gamaliel advised them to be tolerant for "if this counsel or this work be of men, it will come to naught... if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it."

Churches Turn To 'Theology Of Ecology'

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "Earth Mother," the ancient mystery religions called it. St. Francis of Assisi expressed man's identity with nature in terms such as "Brother Ant" and "Sister Water." The late theologian-missionary Albert Schweitzer summed up the same attitude in the phrase, "reverence for life."

Such recurring intimations of the interrelationship of all creation, great and small, and humanity's stake in caring for it, is moving to the forefront of the ecology today in the awakened anxiety about environmental abuse.

"The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof," said the Psalms, adding that so are the mountains, stars, seas, rivers and "every beast of the field...the cattle on a thousand hills...all the birds of the air...and all that moves in the field."

It is divine property that men occupy, not theirs, and not to be ravaged by their tenancy of it, religious scholars are emphasizing increasingly, bolstering the modern church accent on God's involvement in the material affairs of this world.

"Eco-theology," it has been called, a theology of ecology, of land, of conservation, of environment, of nature, an "ecological ethics." A headline in the Jesuit weekly, America, read: "Ecology-the new religion?"

For "too long Christians have interpreted the Genesis command to exercise dominion over the earth as a mandate to conquer and explore nature," says Dr. Richard A. Baer Jr., a New Testament scholar of Erilham College, Richmond, Ind., now serving on new Environmental Stewardship Team of the National Council of Churches.

He adds that the utilitarian attitude, coupled with modern technological capabilities and America's constant urge to boost industrial production, threaten the survival of life on the planet.

"Failure to fulfill our obligations as faithful trustees of creation will inevitably bring God's judgment upon us," he says.

Churches across the country were urged by the National Council to observe a special "Environmental Sunday" this weekend in advance of the countrywide "teach-ins" planned by for "Earth Day" next Wednesday.

We need to appreciate more fully the religious and moral dimensions of the relation between nature and the human spirit," says Dr. Richard L. Means, a sociologist of Kalamazoo College in Michigan.

Some of the experts maintain that efforts to stop pollution and protect nature are only stop-gap holding actions, and that the only real solution lies in curbing the population explosion, and decelerating Western emphasis on ever greater production and consumption.

The Early Church

THE RAPID GROWTH OF THE FIRST CHURCH

Scripture—Acts 2:43-6.

By R. H. RAMSEY
TODAY'S lesson covers a great deal of material, far more than can be dealt with in detail, so we will discuss only the highlights.

The concluding verses of Acts 2 give us insight into the first church. There was harmony, joy and a great sense of the presence of God. Goods were shared voluntarily, and those who had possessions willingly sold them so the needs of the brethren could be met. They worshiped in the temple and in private, and shared meals in each other's homes. This type of public and private behavior earned the sympathy, interest and respect of the people and gained a considerable number of converts.

Near the end of His earthly ministry Christ had promised that the early Christians would have the truthfulness of their gospel preaching confirmed by signs and wonders. The first of these miracles was the healing of the lame man.

A beggar, paralyzed from birth, approached Peter and hearin the following day. At the hearing they were not accused of anything, but were asked by what power or authority they had healed the lame man who now stood with them.

Peter and John spoke boldly, declaring the resurrection of Jesus who had been crucified and whom God had raised from the dead, and proclaimed salvation in His name and His alone.

The Sanhedrin could find no law which Peter and John had broken. They had healed a lame man, and could hardly be punished for doing a good deed for that would arouse the people on the side of the apostles. In the end they decided to threaten Peter and John with punishment, forbid them to speak more of Jesus of Nazareth and turn them loose.

Replying to the verdict, Peter left it up to them whether the apostles should obey the Sanhedrin or God. Yet in their minds the question was already settled. They would obey God. "For we cannot but speak of things which we have seen and heard."

GOLDEN TEXT

"And we are his witnesses of these things; and so is also the Holy Ghost, whom God hath given to them that obey him."—Acts 5:32.

John as they entered the Temple and asked for alms. Instead of giving him money, Peter pulled him to his feet and commanded him, in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, to walk. As he stood, strength entered into his feet and ankles. Soon he was leaping about and praising God for his remarkable realization of health. Peter seized the opportunity to preach his second sermon.

First he rebuked the onlookers for marveling at the miracle, for many of them had seen similar miracles performed by Jesus, whom they had denied and crucified. He was the Prince of Life, residing in glory and would return and restore all things, as the prophets had predicted. And he called upon them to "repent and be converted" for in order to receive salvation their repentance must be followed with sincere faith in Christ and joyous acceptance of His atoning work.

Both Peter and John were arrested and imprisoned to await a hearing before the Sanhedrin. Based on copyrighted outlines produced by the Division of Christian Education, National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., and used by permission.

Free again, Peter and John returned to the believers and related their experience. When they had finished, the company lifted their voices to God in praise, thanksgiving and prayer. The apostles had no intention of obeying the Sanhedrin's order and continued their preaching and healing, most frequently on the porch of the Temple. In the second clash with the rationalistic Sadducees, the ecclesiastical authorities had the entire band of apostles arrested and locked up overnight, intending to take more drastic action the following day. During the night, however, an angel of the Lord opened the prison doors and released the apostles, telling them to return to the Temple and continue their work.

Again they were arrested and brought before the high court. This time, however, a man named Gamaliel advised them to be tolerant for "If this counsel or this work be of men, it will come to naught... if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it."

Churches Turn To 'Theology Of Ecology'

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "Earth Mother," the ancient mystery religions called it. St. Francis of Assisi expressed man's identity with nature in terms such as "Brother Ant" and "Sister Water." The late theologian-missionary Albert Schweitzer summed up the same attitude in the phrase, "reverence for life."

Such recurring intimations of the interrelationship of all creation, great and small, and humanity's stake in caring for it, is moving to the forefront of the ecology today in the awakened anxiety about environmental abuse.

"The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof," said the Psalms, adding that so are the mountains, stars, seas, rivers and "every beast of the field...the cattle on a thousand hills...all the birds of the air...and all that moves in the field."

It is divine property that men occupy, not theirs, and not to be ravaged by their tenancy of it, religious scholars are emphasizing increasingly, bolstering the modern church accent on God's involvement in the material affairs of this world.

"Eco-theology," it has been called, a theology of ecology, of land, of conservation, of environment, of nature, an "ecological ethics." A headline in the Jesuit weekly, America, read: "Ecology-the new religion?"

For "too long Christians have interpreted the Genesis command to exercise dominion over the earth as a mandate to conquer and explore nature," says Dr. Richard A. Baer Jr., a New Testament scholar of Erilham College, Richmond, Ind., now serving on new Environmental Stewardship Team of the National Council of Churches.

He adds that the utilitarian attitude, coupled with modern technological capabilities and America's constant urge to boost industrial production, threaten the survival of life on the planet.

"Failure to fulfill our obligations as faithful trustees of creation will inevitably bring God's judgment upon us," he says.

Churches across the country were urged by the National Council to observe a special "Environmental Sunday" this weekend in advance of the countrywide "teach-in's" planned by for "Earth Day" next Wednesday.

We need to appreciate more fully the religious and moral dimensions of the relation between nature and the human spirit," says Dr. Richard L. Means, a sociologist of Kalamazoo College in Michigan.

Some of the experts maintain that efforts to stop pollution and protect nature are only stop-gap holding actions, and that the only real solution lies in curbing the population explosion, and decelerating Western emphasis on ever greater production and consumption.

More than 800 churchmen are expected to participate in a major interdenominational conference Oct. 15-18 in Washington on the topic, under the title, "Human Survival and Quality of Life."

The "Psychological Aspects In The Nursing Care Of The Cancer Patient" was the subject of Miss Rosalie Kortnhof, the American Cancer Society nursing consultant, mid-west region. A panel of a minister, nurse and psychiatrist concluded the program for the workshop.

Rev. David B. Allardice of Circleville, Miss Rosalie Kortnhof, and Dr. Buell Ashmore, Chillicothe were the guest panel members. This year will make Patty's fourth year of cheerleading. Her reaction when she was chosen this year was, "surprised and honored." As a cheerleader, next year Patty wants to encourage more spirit for games and more support for the teams.

Patty thinks the new reserve squad is great. "We're going to work really hard and try to be a squad Circleville can be proud of."

Patty is kept busy at school with GAA, Band, and cheerleading. Her outside activities include MYF and Girl Scouts.

High School Sets Earth Day Events

By JUDY BROCK

On April 22 the nation will experience Earth Day. This is a commitment to make life better, not just bigger and faster.

Earth Day is being planned and organized on the local level. In each community people are going to take one giant step forward to help bring pollution to a stop.

April 22 seeks a future and a world worth living in.

Fiske D. O'Hara, works engineer of the local DuPont plant, has been selected to speak to CHS on Earth Day. The juniors and seniors will hear him at 9 a.m. and the sophomores at 10. He will give a lecture, show slides and a film.

A plea to the large corporations to stop dumping their waste into our rivers, to take DDT out of our food, to keep smog out of our cities — this is what Earth Day is all about.

Seniors Stage 'Dark Of Moon'

By VICKI RALSTON

The stage is set for the Senior Class play "Dark of the Moon" under the direction of Will Dunkle.

The scene is at the peak of a ridge in the Smoky Mountains. From the darkness can be seen the silhouette of a large tree rising gnarled and twisted against a windswept, cloudy sky. Offstage is heard the voice of a young man calling. It is the voice of John, the Witch boy. "Is you here, Conjur Man? Hit jis me, Conjur Man, John."

As the Conjur Man answers John stated his plea, "if you do this thing past, I swear I pay you anythin' you want. Make me into a human!" But he is flatly refused his request by the Conjur Man who explained to him why being human would be hard for him. "Witch boy, listen at me talkin'. Witches can't be changed completely. Thar is allus somethin' 'bout the witch they wunst was that is left inside 'em. That thar somethin' can't be changed. Hit lies sleepin' thar inside 'em, sleepin' and a-dreamin' a the days he was a witch, dreamin' a-the nights he rode a-screamin' and a-cryin' 'gainst the blackness a the sky."

"What that out thar, Conjur Man? Who that out thar you makin' all that fuss?" asked his sly wife. Again John requests his favor of such a powerful witch and tells her of his love for Barbara Allen.

"I think you need some larnin', witch boy, you need to larn a lesson. So I'll give you yer wish. But you got to promise somethin', you got to make Barbara Allen yer wife."

John, quite excited that he will be changed, shouts, "Then I'll be a human. No more ridin' with my eagle, black against the moonlight a streak against the sky. No more diggin' in the night and a-screamin' with a long high cry that splashes 'gainst the stars! But you'll change me for allus, won't you? Wunst you are a human thar ain't no turnin' back."

The grotesque old woman answers, "That depend on Barbara Allen. I mean she gotta be true to you, boy, faithful fer a year, wunst you are married, wunst you are her husband, if that girl go off with another man, you'll find yer eagle flyin' down from Baldy, flyin' with the moonlight, fer you will be a witch again!"

And so the action is set with John, the witch boy becoming human. Will be able to endure the hardships of being a human and gain the consent of Barbara Allen to his marriage proposal? If she does, can he persuade such a girl to become his faithful wife for a year? See the entire production on April 24 and 25 in the CHS auditorium, beginning 8 p.m.

The major goal of Vocational Home Economics is the preparation of youth for the responsibilities and activities involved in homemaking and achieving family well being.

By the very nature and content of Vocational Home Economics program offerings, the life of the learner is enriched through an emphasis upon development of appreciation, values, attitudes, and skills. Of all subjects taught in high school, it is unique in this contribution.

The major areas included in Vocational Home Economics in secondary schools are: personal and family relations; home management; consumer competence and responsibility; care and guidance of children; selection and care of the house, its furnishing and equipment; clothing for individuals and families; and food for individuals and families. The offerings are fundamental to a program which must develop homemakers who are both knowledgeable and skilled in their diversified service to the family.

CHS offers Vocational Home Economics I, II, III and is planning for IV. Students receive one and one-fourth credits for these courses. With a new program seniors who never had any home economics are now able to take Senior Home Economics.

CHS Lounge New Project For Students

By RANDY HALLEY

April 13 the student lounge went into effect on a trial basis. The Student Council has been hard at work on this project and hopes to make it a success.

Certain rules and regulations are placed on the lounge. Some of the rules are as follow: Any student may use the lounge the first, second, third, seventh and eighth periods. A student must sign into the lounge at the beginning of each period by signing a paper and giving his name to a Student Council member at the door. Students are allowed in the lounge only one period a day. A limit of 75 students is allowed in the lounge each period.

Students must be reasonable in their action and behavior. Their behavior is judged by the monitor or Student Council member in the area. Violators of the rules and regulations will lose the privilege of the use of the lounge for the remainder

Calendar

April 18 — Circleville track relays
April 20 — Baseball game with Greenfield at home
April 21 — Track meet at Walnut Ridge
April 22 — Baseball game at Wilmington
April 22 — Earth Day
April 24 — Track meet at Wilmington
April 24 — Senior class play
April 24 — End of fifth six weeks
April 25 — Senior class play

of the year. These are only a few rules and may be revised after the first year.

The student lounge will be very essential to the students if it is used correctly. The lounge gives the students a chance to develop a sense of responsibility and self-discipline. Informal discussions with other students and teachers will benefit the student as an educational process. The lounge will also benefit the study hall and library in that it will curb the behavior of the students.

With the help of all the students, the student lounge can turn out to be a success.

CHS Lounge New Project For Students

By RANDY HALLEY

April 13 the student lounge went into effect on a trial basis. The Student Council has been hard at work on this project and hopes to make it a success.

Certain rules and regulations are placed on the lounge. Some of the rules are as follow: Any student may use the lounge the first, second, third, seventh and eighth periods. A student must sign into the lounge at the beginning of each period by signing a paper and giving his name to a Student Council member at the door. Students are allowed in the lounge only one period a day. A limit of 75 students is allowed in the lounge each period.

Students must be reasonable in their action and behavior. Their behavior is judged by the monitor or Student Council member in the area. Violators of the rules and regulations will lose the privilege of the use of the lounge for the remainder

April 18 — Circleville track relays
April 20 — Baseball game with Greenfield at home
April 21 — Track meet at Walnut Ridge
April 22 — Baseball game at Wilmington
April 22 — Earth Day
April 24 — Track meet at Wilmington
April 24 — Senior class play
April 24 — End of fifth six weeks
April 25 — Senior class play

of the year. These are only a few rules and may be revised after the first year.

The student lounge will be very essential to the students if it is used correctly. The lounge gives the students a chance to develop a sense of responsibility and self-discipline. Informal discussions with other students and teachers will benefit the student as an educational process. The lounge will also benefit the study hall and library in that it will curb the behavior of the students.

With the help of all the students, the student lounge can turn out to be a success.

Diamondmen Are Featured

By BILLY THOMAS and Ty ANKROM

The Red and Black staff is again saluting two seniors on the 1970 CHS baseball squad. Ray Williams and Glen Griebel are the spotlighted diamondmen this week.

Ray, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Williams, lives at 627 S. Court St. He also has two sisters, Melinda, 19, and Melissa, 5. Ray is in his second year of varsity ball at CHS. Previously he played ball at Lancaster High School.

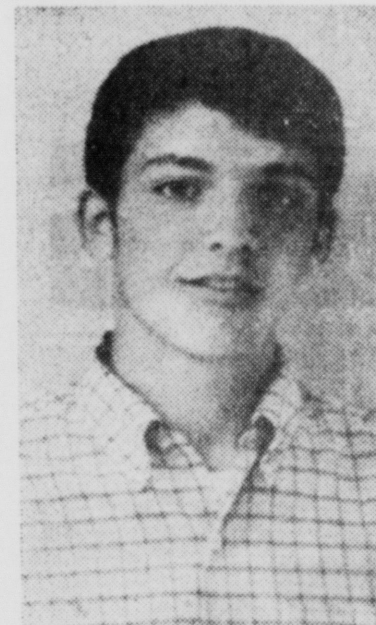

RAY WILLIAMS

The big first-basemen thinks this year's version of the baseball team is "great!" He stated, "If our pitching comes through, we will win the league." Known for his desire and good spirit, Williams is a big asset to the Tiger "9."

After graduation Williams plans to get a job or join the Navy.

Glen Griebel, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Griebel of 120 Pinckney St., is the second featured hardballer this week. "We should win the league because of good team spirit and hustle on the part of everyone," stated Glenn, obviously happy at the thought.

GLEN GRIEBEL

One of the best-liked players on the club, Glenn will try his hand at any position but concentrates mostly on third base and the outfield. Already this year he has proved his worth to the Tigers with several timely hits and smooth, sure base-running. Now enjoying his second year on the squad, Griebel put his whole heart into the game and rates as one of the best hustlers on the team.

Sports of all kinds and working at his Dad's store occupy most of Glenn's off-the-field activities but he still finds time to attend the Trinity Lutheran Church. A solid student, he plans to attend Ohio University after graduation.

WILLIAM TEDERS

Central Ohio Scout Council Names Camp Directors

J. H. Browne, scout executive of the Central Ohio Council, Boy Scouts of America, announced today the selection of Richard Morrison to be director of Greenhills Reservation and William Teders to fill the camp directorship at Lazarus Scout Reservation.

Morrison attended Clarion State College where he majored in physical science. He entered professional scouting at Oil City, Pa., and served as director of camp development at Sharon, Pa. Morrison joined the Central Ohio Council Staff in 1967. He is a graduate of the National Camping School and National Aquatic School where he served as an instructor. He is a member of the National Rifle Assn. and the American Camping Assn. Currently he is serving as director of camping for the Central Ohio Council.

Greenhills Reservation is located 6 miles southeast of Logan and comprises 1200 acres of undeveloped forests. Two camps are located on the reservation — Camp Buckeye and Camp Longhorn. Camp Longhorn will feature the troop camping experience. The camping program will include swimming, canoeing, boating, hiking, nature adventure, woodcraft skills and camp living.

All meals are cooked by the patrols of each troop. Each site has water, sanitary facilities, patrol tables and program equipment. Longhorn Camp also features the burro — beast of burden — Learn how to pack it and use it on the trail.

Camp Buckeye is the high adventure camp. Its program features the "Little Philmont" program. Base camps are equipped with tentage and sanitary facilities. Four basic high adventure camps will be featured.

Trail Bike use — How to ride safely and maintain the modern trail motor bike; hunters' camp featuring the safe use of the rifle, range, archery, skeet, fishing and high caliber riflery; survival camp emphasizing the building of lean-to and shelter, survival foods and preparation of them, basic tool use; rope and knife skills and living under survival conditions; and canoe trips. Flexibility is the key word at the high adventure camps.

Troops camping at the high adventure camp may bring or buy their food at the camp. Other program features are use of the swimming pool and the 10 acre lake for canoes and boats.

William Teders is a graduate of West Virginia University with a bachelor of science degree in business administration. He served on the Marion Council staff before moving to Columbus to become a district executive and field director. Teders holds certificates in camp management and program administration. He is an aquatics expert, holding the Ohio Valley Diving Championship for two years.

Camp Lazarus is located five miles south of Delaware on Route 23. This year's program will feature swimming, canoeing, riflery, wood lore, campcraft and nature. Three new program areas will be constructed at Lazarus this year — softball diamond, volleyball court and horseshoe pits.

Scouts may attend either camp with their own troop or they may come as individuals and a leader will be provided for this. Persons interested in sending their Scout sons to this provisional camp should contact the Scout Service Center.

Scout scholarships are also available to Scouts that need financial help. J. H. Browne, Scout Executive, said, "There is no reason — either financial or leadership — why a Scout cannot enjoy summer camp this year."

Army Seeks Men For Paratroopers

Opportunities currently exist for young men desiring training as paratroopers in the Army's Airborne outfits. Sgt. Don Parker, Pickaway County area Army recruiter announced today.

"Army paratroopers are members of the swiftest, finest striking force in the Free World. Men volunteering for service in this elite organization will find that the physical standards are high and the training rugged, but that the benefits are excellent," said Sgt. Parker.

"By the time they complete basic training and the 21 days of jump school, paratrooper trainees have made five jumps from aircraft at 1,200 feet, are in top physical condition and have learned about parachutes, weapons, self-defense and leadership," he said.

"Men who wear the silver wings of a U.S. Army Paratrooper earn an extra $55 per month in addition to their regular Army pay and allowances as long as they remain assigned to an Airborne unit, and excellent opportunities for training and promotion are open to them," he added. Since Airborne outfits operate as complete, self-sustained units, they require men trained in many of the military occupation specialties.

Men who meet the requirements for Airborne may enlist with a written guarantee of entry into jump school.

Sgt. Parker has additional information about training and opportunities in the Army Airborne. He may be reached by telephone at 237-0272 COLLECT to arrange an appointment or a visit to your home or school. He is at the Circleville Post Office recruiting center each Thursday.

New Discoveries

NORTH ELMHAM, England (AP) — Archaeologists have found 55 bronze age articles in a field here, including axeheads and two pieces of sword.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Columbus Citizen-Journal endorsed today the Senate candidacies of Republican Gov. James A. Rhodes and Democrat John H. Glenn.

A spokesman for the morning newspaper said the two other Scripps-Howard papers in Ohio, the Cleveland Press and Cincinnati Post and Times Star, would follow suit in their afternoon editions.

The three earlier came out in support of State Auditor Roger Cloud and John J. Gilligan for the Republican and Democratic gubernatorial nominations.

The Citizen-Journal said Rhodes would be a more aggressive representative of Ohio in Washington than his chief opponent, Rep. Robert Taft Jr.

Rhodes also understands urban problems, the newspaper said, and would fill a need in the Senate for a strong Republican spokesman for Ohio cities.

Former astronaut Glenn was described by the newspaper as "a man who looks ahead to a spectacular future he helped to shape, but who has his feet firmly on the ground."

The newspaper said Glenn's two major opponents for the nomination, Howard Metzenbaum and Dr. Kenneth Clement, have strong claims to support, but Glenn, because of his comprehension of society's day-to-day problems, "emerges as the soundest choice."

Rhodes issued a policy statement on agriculture Thursday, saying its importance "must be considered on the basis of its 20 per cent contribution to our national economy, not on the basis that only 2 per cent of our population are farmers."

He said surplus agricultural lands "are a critical investment in our future," and if elected he would take special interest in proper utilization of farmlands until they are needed to produce food for the growing population.

Glenn called in Akron for total reform of educational financing in Ohio. "We should take a close hard look at the problem and then work out the solution," he said.

He said methods used for financing elementary and secondary education are "totally inadequate" and, as a result, Ohio children are being cheated out of a quality education.

Metzenbaum said in Youngstown that Congress should create a National Economic Conversion Act to avoid a costly and chaotic transition to a peacetime economy after the Vietnam war ends.

"I want to ensure that high unemployment will not be a by-product of the transition stage," he said.

Gilligan accused Republican state administration officials today with cynically blaming Michigan and Canada with polluting Lake Erie while failing to act against Ohio polluters.

He said in a statement that the state should enforce existing antipollution laws and develop programs to aid municipalities to develop adequate sewage treatment systems.

Cloud continued to hop about the state by helicopter Thursday. He has become so enthusiastic about the whirlbirds that he proposed in Dayton that every city build landing pads near downtown areas and hospitals.

A highlight of Cloud's gubernatorial campaign will come tonight when Republican supporters honor him with a $25-a-plate fund-raising dinner in Columbus.

Two other candidates for governor, Republican Rep. Donald "Buz" Lukens and Democrat Mark McElroy, touched on the narcotics problem Thursday.

Lukens called for an all-out war on drug peddlers and McElroy said Ohio should establish a modern drug center with proper psychological and medical facilities.

Albert Sealy, candidate for the GOP gubernatorial nomination, said welfare recipients who refuse to accept jobs should be removed from state rolls.

"We must be humane but firm," he said.

Meanwhile, an American Independent Party candidate for governor, Edwin Lawton, who is at odds with AIP leaders, crossed party lines Thursday to attack Lukens. He said the Midletown Congressman was truant from his job in Washington and is wasting the taxpayers' money while stumping.

The party's other gubernatorial candidate, Robert Annable, has challenged Lawton's eligibility for the AIP ticket, and the Ohio Supreme Court is scheduled to rule on that case Monday morning.

Annable contends Lawton is not qualified because he voted as a Republican in previous primaries. But Secretary of State Ted W. Brown ruled the state law does not apply in this case because the AIP is a new political party.

In another political development Thursday, Cleveland attorney Richard Kay asked the federal court in Cincinnati to require WCPO-TV in the Queen City to cancel a scheduled debate Tuesday between Rhodes and Taft or give him equal air time. Rhodes, Glenn Gain Newspaper Support

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Columbus Citizen-Journal endorsed today the Senate candidacies of Republican Gov. James A. Rhodes and Democrat John H. Glenn.

A spokesman for the morning newspaper said the two other Scripps-Howard papers in Ohio, the Cleveland Press and Cincinnati Post and Times Star, would follow suit in their afternoon editions.

The three earlier came out in support of State Auditor Roger Cloud and John J. Gilligan for the Republican and Democratic gubernatorial nominations.

The Citizen-Journal said Rhodes would be a more aggressive representative of Ohio in Washington than his chief opponent, Rep. Robert Taft Jr.

Rhodes also understands urban problems, the newspaper said, and would fill a need in the Senate for a strong Republican spokesman for Ohio cities.

Former astronaut Glenn was described by the newspaper as "a man who looks ahead to a spectacular future he helped to shape, but who has his feet firmly on the ground."

The newspaper said Glenn's two major opponents for the nomination, Howard Metzenbaum and Dr. Kenneth Clement, have strong claims to support, but Glenn, because of his comprehension of society's day-to-day problems, "emerges as the soundest choice."

Rhodes issued a policy statement on agriculture Thursday, saying its importance "must be considered on the basis of its 20 per cent contribution to our national economy, not on the basis that only 2 per cent of our population are farmers."

He said surplus agricultural lands "are a critical investment in our future," and if elected he would take special interest in proper utilization of farmlands until they are needed to produce food for the growing population.

Glenn called in Akron for total reform of educational financing in Ohio. "We should take a close hard look at the problem and then work out the solution," he said.

He said methods used for financing elementary and secondary education are "totally inadequate" and, as a result, Ohio children are being cheated out of a quality education.

Metzenbaum said in Youngstown that Congress should create a National Economic Conversion Act to avoid a costly and chaotic transition to a peacetime economy after the Vietnam war ends.

"I want to ensure that high unemployment will not be a by-product of the transition stage," he said.

Gilligan accused Republican state administration officials today with cynically blaming Michigan and Canada with polluting Lake Erie while failing to act against Ohio polluters.

He said in a statement that the state should enforce existing antipollution laws and develop programs to aid municipalities to develop adequate sewage treatment systems.

Cloud continued to hop about the state by helicopter Thursday. He has become so enthusiastic about the whirlbirds that he proposed in Dayton that every city build landing pads near downtown areas and hospitals.

A highlight of Cloud's gubernatorial campaign will come tonight when Republican supporters honor him with a $25-a-plate fund-raising dinner in Columbus.

Lukens called for an all-out war on drug peddlers and McElroy said Ohio should establish a modern drug center with proper psychological and medical facilities.

RICHARD MORRISON

WILLIAM TEDERS

Central Ohio Scout Council Names Camp Directors

J. H. Browne, scout executive of the Central Ohio Council, Boy Scouts of America, announced today the selection of Richard Morrison to be director of Greenhills Reservation and William Teders to fill the camp directorship at Lazarus Scout Reservation.

Morrison attended Clarion State College where he majored in physical science. He entered professional scouting at Oil City, Pa., and served as director of camp development at Sharon, Pa. Morrison joined the Central Ohio Council Staff in 1967. He is a graduate of the National Camping School and National Aquatic School where he served as an instructor. He is a member of the National Rifle Assn. and the American Camping Assn. Currently he is serving as director of camping for the Central Ohio Council.

Greenhills Reservation is located 6 miles southeast of Logan and comprises 1200 acres of undeveloped forests. Two camps are located on the reservation — Camp Buckeye and Camp Longhorn. Camp Longhorn will feature the troop camping experience. The camping program will include swimming, canoeing, boating, hiking, nature adventure, woodcraft skills and camp living.

All meals are cooked by the patrols of each troop. Each site has water, sanitary facilities, patrol tables and program equipment. Longhorn Camp also features the burro — beast of burden — Learn how to pack it and use it on the trail.

Camp Buckeye is the high adventure camp. Its program features the "Little Philmont" program. Base camps are equipped with tentage and sanitary facilities. Four basic high adventure camps will be featured.

Trail Bike use — How to ride safely and maintain the modern trail motor bike; hunters' camp featuring the safe use of the rifle range, archery, skeet, fishing and high caliber riflery; survival camp emphasizing the building of lean-to and shelter, survival foods and preparation of them, basic tool use; rope and knife skills and living under survival conditions; and canoe trips. Flexibility is the key word at the high adventure camps.

Troops camping at the high adventure camp may bring or buy their food at the camp. Other program features are use of the swimming pool and the 10 acre lake for canoes and boats.

William Teders is a graduate of West Virginia University with a bachelor of science degree in business administration. He served on the Marion Council staff before moving to Columbus to become a district executive and field director. Teders holds certificates in camp management and program administration. He is an aquatics expert, holding the Ohio Valley Diving Championship for two years.

Camp Lazarus is located five miles south of Delaware on Route 23. This year's program will feature swimming, canoeing, riflery, wood lore, campercraft and nature. Three new program areas will be constructed at Lazarus this year — softball diamond, volleyball court and horseshoe pits.

Scouts may attend either camp with their own troop or they may come as individuals and a leader will be provided for this. Persons interested in sending their Scout sons to this provisional camp should contact the Scout Service Center.

Scout scholarships are also available to Scouts that need financial help. J. H. Browne, Scout Executive, said, "There is no reason — either financial or leadership — why a Scout cannot enjoy summer camp this year."

Army Seeks Men For Paratroopers

Opportunities currently exist for young men desiring training as paratroopers in the Army's Airborne outfits, Sgt. Don Parker, Pickaway County area Army recruiter announced today.

"Army paratroopers are members of the swiftest, finest striking force in the Free World. Men volunteering for service in this elite organization will find that the physical standards are high and the training rugged, but that the benefits are excellent," said Sgt. Parker.

"By the time they complete basic training and the 21 days of jump school, paratrooper trainees have made five jumps from aircraft at 1,200 feet, are in top physical condition and have learned about parachutes, weapons, self-defense and leadership," he said.

"Men who wear the silver wings of a U.S. Army Paratrooper earn an extra $55 per month in addition to their regular Army pay and allowances as long as they remain assigned to an Airborne unit, and excellent opportunities for training and promotion are open to them," he added. Since Airborne outfits operate as complete, self-sustained units, they require men trained in many of the military occupation specialties.

Men who meet the requirements for Airborne may enlist with a written guarantee of entry into jump school.

Sgt. Parker has additional information about training and opportunities in the Army Airborne. He may be reached by telephone at 237-0272 COLLECT to arrange an appointment or a visit to your home or school. He is at the Circleville Post Office recruiting center each Thursday.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Constant Talker Needs Affection

DEAR ABBY: My stepson is 15. We get along very well and he is really a good boy. Buy Abby, he TALKS too much!

This boy blabs everything he thinks, hears and sees. He is constantly interrupting adults to contradict them, and he takes over a conversation and holds the floor for as long as he can, running minor details into the ground.

He recently spoiled a surprise party I had planned for a friend. He simply TOLD her about it—not meaning to!

Abby, he is not a bad kid, but I wish he would just learn to keep his mouth shut. I've even considered adhesive tape, but I don't think it is that wide. What can be done? He is driving me up a wall.

DESPERATE
DEAR DESPERATE: Compulsive talking is only one of his problems. His obvious insecurity accounts for his need to draw attention to himself by interrupting, contradicting and holding the floor as long as possible. (Many adults never out-grow this.) Perhaps with maturity will come confidence, patience and better judgment. In the meantime, tell him you

Fishermen File Big Damage Suit

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — A $100 million damage suit against Dow Chemical Co. and Wyandotte Chemical Co. for allegedly polluting Lake Erie with mercury compounds was filed in U.S. District Court here Wednesday by 37 fishermen.

Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes had ordered commercial fishing halted Sunday for what he called dangerous amounts of mercury pollution in the lake. The order was against commercial fishing, not sport fishing.

The fishermen filing suit were from western Lake Erie ports including Port Clinton and Sandusky. Rhodes said his ban on fishing could last two months or longer, and one commercial fisherman said a long ban could put commercial fishing companies out of business.

love him, and before opening his mouth to ask himself:

Is it true?
Is it kind?
Is it necessary?

DEAR ABBY: An acquaintance (I can no longer call her a friend) rang my doorbell early one morning, and after remarking on the weather, said with a little laugh, "There, now I have you on my candid camera!" Then she called my attention to a tiny camera she had in her hand.

I felt very resentful of this since I looked my very worst at that time of day, but I said nothing. How would you have handled that situation?

ANNOYED
DEAR ANNOYED: I'd have asked to see the "cute little camera." I would then confiscate it, and with a little laugh I'd promise to return it after I destroyed the negative of my likeness.

DEAR ABBY: In the office where I work, and it is a very large one, men are required to wear shirts, neckties and jackets during office hours, but there are no rules about dress for women.

I don't object to miniskirts on young girls who have nice legs. But when an overweight middle-age woman with varicose veins wears a miniskirt—well, that's another matter.

Also, some girls come to work dressed like they're going to a cocktail party. Since men are required to observe certain rules of dress, don't you think women should, too?

A MAN (OF COURSE)

DEAR MAN: Yes. But it's more complicated to make "rules" for women. All women should be told on hiring that they are expected to dress modestly and appropriately for an office. (This should eliminate necklines that are down to there, and skirts that are up to here.) If a woman violates the rules, the office manager should give her a warning. And if she likes her job, one warning should suffice.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "STILL HOPING": A fine artist knows when his painting is finished. A wise woman knows when the affair is finished. Accept it with grace.

Say Blackmun Owns Stock, Made Rulings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department has advised the Senate Judiciary Committee that Judge Harry A. Blackmun took part in three court cases involving companies in which he held stock.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst said, in a letter to Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., that the holdings of the federal appeals court judge were insignificant.

Kleindienst acted Monday in an apparent move to head off any criticism when the committee starts considering Blackmun's nomination to the Supreme Court.

Kleindienst said Blackmun asked the department to submit the record of his financial holdings, biographical data and a review of his opinions while a member of the U.S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals.

Two of the cases involved the Ford Motor Co., 50 shares of whose stock was purchased by Blackmun before he assumed the federal bench at a total price listed as "slightly in excess of $2,500."

In 1960, the department said, Blackmun wrote an opinion in favor of a man who had sued Ford and won a jury verdict of $24,500 only to have the district court set the judgment aside.

Four years later, the letter said, Blackmun upheld a district court which had set aside a jury verdict of $12,500 in favor of another plaintiff against Ford.

The department said the judge also acquired 22 shares of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. stock for about $1,350 in 1963 and 1964 and subsequently took part in a case involving an AT&T subsidiary.

In a 1967 decision, the court of appeals upheld a lower court which had dismissed a complaint against Northwestern Bell Telephone Co.

The court did so on grounds of lack of jurisdiction, noting that the plaintiff alleged he was a citizen of Nebraska and the telephone company was an Iowa corporation. Blackmun and other appellate judges upheld the lower court's ruling that Northwestern was a Nebraska firm, and the case belonged in state court.

The last three weeks of any political campaign is known as "the silly season" among political professionals and the GOP primary fight between

Gov. James A. Rhodes and Rep. Robert Taft Jr. for the U.S. Senate nomination is no exception.

Staffers on the staffs of both candidates are "uptight" over the approaching election. The Rhodes' forces seem to be the most tense.

Rhodes, at 60, knows that a defeat at this stage of his career can be a political obituary.

Other than the Senate, there is no place to go.

Taft, 53, can weather a setback. He did it once before when he was defeated by retiring Sen. Stephen M. Young. He ran for his old seat in Congress and was elected without trouble.

Gov. Rhodes told a Toledo newsman last week that Taft only has one major campaign issue — the charge Life magazine made against him last May 2.

Rhodes filed a $10.3 million libel suit against the magazine Thursday.

Taft, when he announced his candidacy, said he would not make the Life article a campaign issue.

"What he does," Rhodes said, "is have people in the audience bring up the magazine issue. My opponent got into this race with only that one issue—the magazine article."

"He came into the race with that issue, he has been campaigning on it and he has circulated many ugly rumors about that article."

'Cornstalk Brigade' May Help Cloud Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The so-called "cornstalk brigade" that used to determine the political makeup of Ohio may ride again in the May 5 Republican primary.

With four Republican candidates for governor, the rural vote could decide the winner. Auditor Roger Cloud, Statehouse political observers contend, has that vote tied up.

The point has received some support from a disenchanted backer of Atty. Gen. Paul W. Brown.

The source contends Brown has been working too hard on the metropolitan vote that can be split four ways.

"He hasn't paid enough attention to the rural counties," the Brown aide said. "That's where he could lose the election."

The "cornstalks brigade" designation was put on the Ohio General Assembly when it was controlled by the rural-oriented downstaters.

After court-ordered reapportionment, it was replaced by the so-called "crabgrass contingent" that was supposedly dominated by the suburbs.

The GOP gubernatorial candidates, in addition to Cloud and Brown, are Donald E. "Buz" Lukens, the Middletown congressman, and Albert Sealy, the Dayton lawyer.

All, other than Cloud, are from metropolitan areas. Cloud, the former speaker of the Ohio

House, is a resident of DeGraff, Logan County.

The last three weeks of any political campaign is known as "the silly season" among political professionals and the GOP primary fight between

Gov. James A. Rhodes and Rep. Robert Taft Jr. for the U.S. Senate nomination is no exception.

Staffers on the staffs of both candidates are "uptight" over the approaching election. The Rhodes' forces seem to be the most tense.

Rhodes, at 60, knows that a defeat at this stage of his career can be a political obituary.

Other than the Senate, there is no place to go.

Taft, 53, can weather a setback. He did it once before when he was defeated by retiring Sen. Stephen M. Young. He ran for his old seat in Congress and was elected without trouble.

Gov. Rhodes told a Toledo newsman last week that Taft only has one major campaign issue — the charge Life magazine made against him last May 2.

Rhodes filed a $10.3 million libel suit against the magazine Thursday.

Taft, when he announced his candidacy, said he would not make the Life article a campaign issue.

"What he does," Rhodes said, "is have people in the audience bring up the magazine issue. My opponent got into this race with only that one issue—the magazine article."

"He came into the race with that issue, he has been campaigning on it and he has circulated many ugly rumors about that article."

The Adult Reading World

"The Past Tense of Love" by Elizabeth Cadell, Elizabeth Cadell can be depended upon for light appeal, warmth, and a happy ending. In this, her latest book, she tells of Kerry, independent and successful. In fact she wonders if she may be a bit too much of a loner.

Sent to France by her crochety tycoon boss, she meets her past and her future in ways that push her toward the love and companionship she should have had all along.

"Rosa" by Margery Sharp. From Cluny Brown, to Martha, to Rosa, Margery Sharp's women have always had a core of steel and an exterior of surprises. Rosa, born in South America, came to England alone when in her teens. Her mother was a peasant, a commonlaw wife, and had no love for her daughter. But convent training had given Rosa at least the manner of the well-born. To everyone's surprise but her own, she married a man of position and established herself as a lady. Only once, when she was 50, did she permit herself a brief love.

It was on her grand nephews that she lavished the affection stored up for a whole life time. She sees them through their sweet adolescence, and finally through the second world war. The book ends abruptly. One feels, as the book is closed, that a few extra pages should be tacked onto the back. Surely we are not yet ready to leave Rosa!

"Catherine, the Queen" by Mary Luke. Even though Mrs. Luke presents an excellent bibliography, I find it difficult to believe that she actually did as much research for this biography as was done by Norah Lofts for her book of historical fiction about the same personality and the same period "The King's Pleasure." For those who enjoy historical fiction, I would unhesitatingly suggest Lofts' book. For serious students either of two I have previously read: Claremont, "Catherine of Aragon"; Mattingly, "Catherine of Aragon". Reviewed by Helen C. Beck.

Our, "I never should have opened my mouth," award must go to Coach Richie Guerin of the Atlanta Hawks basketball team. Richie became one of the big blood donors and was fined $1,000 for his effort. Of course the blood he wanted to donate belonged to Jerry West and Elgin Baylor of the rival Los Angeles Lakers.

Did Tiger track coach Jim Lint's eyes light up like the tilt on a pinball machine when freshman Tom Frericks air lifted the discus 153 feet 3 1/2 inches Wednesday night?

Our little gem of information — The most knock-downs recorded in a heavyweight title fight took place in the Max Baer-Primo Carnera brawl in 1934 at New York. Baer dropped Carnera 12 times in 11 rounds before the referee stopped the slaughter.

Our "fearless" forecast — The Knicks will give Milwaukee Buck fever . . . LA Lakers will lump the Atlanta Hawks . . . Gary Player will not stumble over "Buffalo Billy" in the New Orleans Open.

Until next time, have a nice day — be a good sport.

Gullett Leads Reds Win; To Be 'Great'

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN

Associated Press Sports Writer

Don Gullett was drafted last June but his pitching has just been classified 1-A.

That's because the 19-year-old left-hander was drafted by a baseball team—the Cincinnati Reds—and the rest of the National League is on the receiving end of his meteoric rise to stardom.

"In time, he'll be nothing but a star. We're seeing a star being born right before our eyes," said manager Sparky Anderson after Gullett picked up his first major league victory with five scoreless innings of three-hit relief and got the win in Cincinnati's 12-2 romp over Los Angeles Thursday night.

"He'll have his bad outings in the future, sure, but he can't miss being a great one."

Those are strong words of praise for a rookie less than a year out of McKell High School in Lynn, Ky., who made only 11 appearances in the low minors before he was added to the Reds' roster just before opening day.

But the figures back him up. Gullett has pitched 6 1-3 innings in three big league games, allowing four hits, no runs, four walks and four strikeouts.

Elsewhere in the NL, San Francisco outslugged Houston 11-9 in 10 innings, San Diego topped Atlanta 5-4 in 10, Pittsburgh beat the New York Mets 7-4 and the Chicago Cubs nipped Philadelphia 6-5, also in 10 innings. St. Louis and Montreal were idle.

In the American League, it was Washington 4, Baltimore 2; Boston 8, New York Yankees 5; Detroit 4, Cleveland 2; Kansas City 8, Milwaukee 6; Oakland 3, Chicago White Sox 1 and California 3, Minnesota 2.

Gullett, who has been likened to Sandy Koufax at a comparable age by Cincinnati's scouting supervisor Cliff Alexander, was an all-around athlete in high school. In his senior year he was 9-2 with 120 strikeouts in 52 innings and hurled a perfect game, fanning 20 of the 21 batters.

Gullett was an all-around athlete Thursday night, too. He walked and stole a base to ignite a five-run uprising in the fifth inning and touched off a three-run rally in the sixth with a triple. Lee May capped the five-run inning with a grand slam and Tony Perez hit a two-run homer in the eighth.

Gullett's performance was especially welcome because the Reds lost right-hander Jim Maloney, who ruptured the Achilles tendon in his left leg in the third inning and was placed on the 60-day disabled list.

Derby Tests Set On Tracks Across Nation

By BOB COOPER

Associated Press Sports Writer

The "all aboard for Kentucky" call will be sounded on both coasts Saturday with the last two major preps outside the Bluegrass State for the biggest show in horse racing, the Kentucky Derby.

After the Wood Memorial at Aqueduct in New York and the California Derby at San Francisco's Golden Gate Fields, only three big preps remain before the May 2 Derby. All are in Kentucky.

A field of a dozen or more is expected for the Wood, with last year's juvenile champion, Silent Screen, and Gotham winner Native Royalty included. Seven or eight, including George Lewis and Top the Market, are probables for the California Derby.

Both tests carry $100,000—odds purses and both are at 1 1/4 miles, a furlong shorter than the Derby at Churchill Downs in Louisville.

With these races over, only the 1-mile Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland and the seven-furlong Stepping Stone Purses and the one-mile Derby Trial at Churchill Downs remain of the traditional preps before America's premier horse race.

If the full expected field goes in the Wood, the pot will be worth $116,800, with one non-Derby horse, Calumet Farm's stakes spoiler Sunny Tim, out to cop the major share.

Ethel Jacobs is expected to send her duo of Personality and High Echelon against such other starters as Briardale Farm's Stop Time, Mike Ford's Parasol Pete, John Marsh's Clove Hitch, Allan Ross's Estimator Dave and C. V. Whitney's Prize Silver.

Kentucky Derby nominees set to go with George Lewis and Top the Market on the West Coast include Hanalei Bay, Cool Hand and Faithful Leader, along with Royal Talent and Sir Wiggle.

Each race is expected to erase Kentucky plans from four or five minds—paring a cumbersome field. Just two weeks left before the derby, 30 horses—more than will fit across the Churchill Downs track—still are considered as possible starters.

Wehrle Edges Teays Valley In Track Meet

Wehrle took a close decision over the Teays Valley tracksters, 67-60, Thursday in a meet held on the Wehrle track.

Jeff Helsner led the Viking cindermen getting first in the high jump, 100-yard dash and the 440-yard run. He also picked up a second in the 220-yard dash.

Jack Brinker gained a first for the Vikings in the shot put. Jeff Seymour took first in the 180-foot hurdles.

Mike Thomas was a winner in the 220-yard dash and Bob Smith captured the two mile run to bolster the Viking scoring.

The Vikings will be running again Saturday when they travel to Circleville to compete in the Circleville Invitational Relays.

Lawrence, Kan. (AP) — Larbi Oukada can't beat his wife in footraces in parks, but he put on a 24th lap sprint seldom seen on any big time track Thursday to get the 45th Kansas Relays off to a record-breaking start.

The 23-year-old native of Morocco romped away from his challengers on the final lap of the open six-mile run. He was timed in 59.6 seconds on the last lap as he smashed the Kansas Relays record by nearly a minute the first time he ran the event.

Haywood ranked first in scoring and rebounding and set league records for total points, 2,519, total rebounds, 1,637, and rebounding average, 19.49.

powered the Giants past Houston, Willie Mays tied the game with a two-run homer in the eighth inning—his first of the season and 601st of his career—and Willie McCovey won it with a two-run shot in the 10th, Tito Fuentes also connected for the Giants while Denis Menke and Jim Wynn homered for the Astros.

Atlanta's Phil Niekro, knocking his way toward his first win for seven innings, wound up instead with his third loss. Nate Colbert wiped out a 4-1 Brave lead with a three-run homer in the eighth following two-out singles by Van Kelly and Clarence Gaston and pinch hitter Ivan Murrell homered in the 10th to win it.

Pittsburgh saw the Mets score four times in the sixth inning to tie the score—Cleon Jones' bases-loaded triple was the key blow—but the Pirates moved right back in front in the seventh on RBI singles by Jose Pagan and Roberto Clemente. Al Oliver homered in the eighth to close out the scoring.

Randy Hundley's 10th-inning single with bases loaded snapped a 5-5 tie—the Phillies scored a run in the ninth to tie it—and gave the Cubs their third straight triumph. Billy Williams homered for the Cubs and Deron Johnson for the Phillies, who have lost five in a row after a promising start.

Tiger Cindermen Garner Top Honors In Tri Meet

Gullett Leads Reds Win; To Be 'Great'

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN

Associated Press Sports Writer

Don Gullett was drafted last June but his pitching has just been classified 1-A.

That's because the 19-year-old left-hander was drafted by a baseball team—the Cincinnati Reds—and the rest of the National League is on the receiving end of his meteoric rise to stardom.

"In time, he'll be nothing but a star. We're seeing a star being born right before our eyes," said manager Sparky Anderson after Gullett picked up his first major league victory with five scoreless innings of three-hit relief and got the win in Cincinnati's 12-2 romp over Los Angeles Thursday night.

"He'll have his bad outings in the future, sure, but he can't miss being a great one."

Those are strong words of praise for a rookie less than a year out of McKell High School in Lynn, Ky., who made only 11 appearances in the low minors before he was added to the Reds' roster just before opening day.

But the figures back him up. Gullett has pitched 6 1-3 innings in three big league games, allowing four hits, no runs, four walks and four strikeouts.

Elsewhere in the NL, San Francisco outslugged Houston 11-9 in 10 innings, San Diego topped Atlanta 5-4 in 10, Pittsburgh beat the New York Mets 7-4 and the Chicago Cubs nipped Philadelphia 6-5, also in 10 innings. St. Louis and Montreal were idle.

In the American League, it was Washington 4, Baltimore 2; Boston 8, New York Yankees 5; Detroit 4, Cleveland 2; Kansas City 8, Milwaukee 6; Oakland 3, Chicago White Sox 1 and California 3, Minnesota 2.

Gullett, who has been likened to Sandy Koufax at a comparable age by Cincinnati's scouting supervisor Cliff Alexander, was an all-round athlete in high school. In his senior year he was 9-2 with 120 strikeouts in 52 innings and hurled a perfect game, fanning 20 of the 21 batters.

Gullett was an all-round athlete Thursday night, too. He walked and stole a base to ignite a five-run uprising in the fifth inning and touched off a three-run rally in the sixth with a triple. Lee May capped the five-run inning with a grand slam and Tony Perez hit a two-run homer in the eighth.

Gullett's performance was especially welcome because the Reds lost right-hander Jim Maloney, who ruptured the Achilles tendon in his left leg in the third inning and was placed on the 60-day disabled list.

Annual Ohio State Relays Slated To Open Saturday

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Jesse Stuart, a Glasgow, Ky., schoolboy with Olympic track

dreams, takes on the big boys Saturday in the annual Ohio State Relays.

Stuart, a 6-foot-2, 250-pound senior, will return to his greatest triumph in a budding career that he hopes will take him to the 1972 Olympics at Munich.

He put the 12-pound shot put 71 feet, 11 inches here in January, a national indoor high school record. But this time he will hurl the 16-pound ball against open competition.

The 1970 meet has attracted more than 500 collegians and 200 schoolboys for 27 events in Ohio Stadium.

Ohio State Coach Bob Epskamp envisions 21 records if the meet gets a good break from the weather.

The college field will offer most of the big names in Midwest track and field, with a definite Big Ten Conference flavor.

Two Olympians, Ernie Soudek of Austria and Gary Stenlund of the United States, will try to regain titles they lost last year.

Soudek, now working toward a doctorate at Rice Institute, holds the meet discus record of 192-11. However, Rich Fuhs of Indiana University took the 1969 crown with 172-11 to Soudek's 170-5.

Stenlund, a former Ohio University assistant track coach, established the relay javelin mark of 246-8 in 1968, but he was beaten last year by Pat Etcheberry of Lexington, Ky.

Fifteen individual champions will be back. There is no team champ determined in the meet sanctioned by the U.S. Track and Field Federation.

The 100-yard dash competition should be the tightest of the day with seven sprinters able to do 9.5 seconds or better. The century field will be led by Indiana University's Mike Goodrich, who sped to a 9.2 clocking in the Drake Relays.

Defending 100 king Herb Washington of Michigan State and Jerry Hill of Ohio State are 9.4 sprinters. Four more own 9.5 times.

Spencer Haywood Leads ABA Scoring

NEW YORK (AP) — Spencer Haywood, the rookie who rocketed Denver to the championship of the American Basketball Association's Western Division, and Darel Carrier of Kentucky each won a pair of individual titles during the regular season, final league statistics showed Thursday night.

Haywood ranked first in scoring and rebounding and set league records for total points, 2,519, total rebounds, 1,637, and rebounding average, 19.49.

Wehrle Edges Teays Valley In Track Meet

Wehrle took a close decision over the Teays Valley tracksters, 67-60, Thursday in a meet held on the Wehrle track.

Jeff Helsler led the Viking cindermen getting first in the high jump, 100-yard dash and the 440-yard run. He also picked up a second in the 220-yard dash.

Jack Brinker gained a first for the Vikings in the shot put. Jeff Seymour took first in the 180-low hurdles.

Mike Thomas was a winner in the 220-yard dash and Bob Smith captured the two mile run to bolster the Viking scoring.

The Vikings will be running again Saturday when they travel to Circleville to compete in the Circleville Invitational Relays.

powered the Giants past Houston. Willie Mays tied the game with a two-run homer in the eighth inning—his first of the season and 601st of his career—and Willie McCovey won it with a two-run shot in the 10th. Tito Fuentes also connected for the Giants while Denis Menke and Jim Wynn homered for the Astros.

Atlanta's Phil Niekro, knocking his way toward his first win for seven innings, wound up instead with his third loss. Nate Colbert wiped out a 4-1 Brave lead with a three-run homer in the eighth following two-out singles by Van Kelly and Clarence Gaston and pinch hitter Ivan Murrell homered in the 10th to win it.

Pittsburgh saw the Mets score four times in the sixth inning to tie the score—Cleon Jones' bases-loaded triple was the key blow—but the Pirates moved right back in front in the seventh on RBI singles by Jose Pagan and Roberto Clemente. Al Oliver homered in the eighth to close out the scoring.

Randy Hundley's 10th-inning single with bases loaded snapped a 5-5 tie—the Phillies scored a run in the ninth to tie it—and gave the Cubs their third straight triumph. Billy Williams homered for the Cubs and Deon Johnson for the Phillies, who have lost five in a row after a promising start.

The player representatives for the 14 NBA teams, individually and on behalf of all of the league's players, filed suit Thursday, claiming the proposed merger would violate federal antitrust laws.

Pro Basketball Playoffs Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Richie Guerin gets a chance to practice what he preaches while Spencer Haywood tries a new experience tonight in the National and American Basketball Association playoffs.

Player-coach Guerin, a play-off veteran in both roles, is set to play for the Atlanta Hawks against the Lakers in Los Angeles in their best-of-7 NBA Eastern Division final series which the Lakers lead 2-0.

Lew Alcindor, Haywood's NBA counterpart as rookie of the year, will try to get the Milwaukee Bucks back into their Eastern Division final set against the New York Knicks. The Knicks take a 2-0 lead into the game at Milwaukee.

Haywood leads the Denver Rockets, ABA Western Division champion, against the Washington Caps in one of three first-round games. In the others the Los Angeles Stars are at the Dallas Chaparrals and the New York Nets are at the Kentucky Colonels. The Indiana Pacers, Eastern Division winners, entertain the Carolina Cougars Saturday. Each series is the best-of-7.

Guerin is inserting himself into the Hawks' line-up as play-maker because Walt Hazzard fractured his wrist in Tuesday night's 105-94 loss.

"I think I can do the job," the 37-year-old Guerin said Thursday. "Walt has run our offense all season, and I feel I'm the only person around who knows how to run it as well."

Rookie Butch Beard is available to spell Guerin.

Besides having leadership problems, the Hawks must stop the scoring of Jerry West and Elgin Baylor and the shooting and rebounding of Wilt Chamberlain.

Alcindor has been impressive in the Bucks' first two games but he has not been dominating because of the play of New York center Willis Reed. So, the Bucks need the outside firepower of Flynn Robinson and Jon McGlocklin, something that was missing in the first two games.

Reed's play has been complemented by the Knicks' outside shooting, their bench and defense.

Haywood, who recently signed a six-year contract for $1.9 million, led Denver's surge to the top of its division with a league-leading 2,519 points and 1,637 rebounds. Washington hopes to offset Haywood with the shooting of Rick Barry, a veteran of playoff competition with San Francisco in the NBA.

Offensive balance is Dallas' strength.

Senators Defeat High Flying Orioles, 4-2

By TOM SALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer
Baltimore Manger Earl Weaver had minor surgery performed earlier in the day and then the Washington Senators ruined his night as massive Frank Howard and stylish Joe Coleman Jr. successfully operated on his Orioles.

With Howard poling his second homer of the year and Coleman adding a key double, in addition to twirling a neat seven-hitter, the Senators swept to a 4-2 victory over the Orioles Thursday night.

In other American League contests, California ended Minnesota's unbeaten streak at five, whipping the Twins 3-2, Oakland stopped Chicago 3-1,

Kansas City belted Milwaukee 8-6, Detroit edged Cleveland 4-2 and Boston stopped New York 8-5.

Weaver, bothered by a sore throat in the spring, had a cyst removed from his vocal cords Thursday. Although his voice was weaker, it didn't stop the peppy pilot from whispering a complaint.

Weaver put his limited vocal powers to use in the third inning and got an out call on the Orioles' Don Buford reversed when the umpire apparently was obscured on a bobbie by Senators' first baseman Mike Epstein. Weaver protested to another arbiter, who had a clear view of the play, and he changed the decision.

Howard clinched the Senators third straight triumph with his two-run blast in the third inning after Coleman had driven in the Senators first two runs with a bloop double to right field.

Coleman, a 23-year-old right-hander, evened his record at 1-1, and sent the Orioles to their second straight loss after five victories. Coleman, 1-6 lifetime against Baltimore prior to Thursday, struck out two and walked four.

Ken Tatum's clutch relief pitching and a three-run fourth inning enabled the Angels to end Minnesota's streak. Tatum stopped Twins' eight-inning uprising after Harmon Killebrew had opened with a single and was tripped home by Tony Oliva. After another walk by starter and winner Rudy May, Tatum came on and got Leo Cardenas to hit into a double play and struck out George Mitterwald.

Sandy Alomar's perfect squeeze bunt capped the three-run Angel spurt.

John "Blue Moon" Odom scattered six hits and was backed by Oakland's 10-hit attack in the A's victory. Odom, 2-1, struck out eight and walked two. Chicago's lone run came on a 450-foot homer by Buddy Bradford.

The A's got single runs in the third, fifth and sixth innings, with Felipe Alou and Rick Monday keying the attack with three hits apiece. Monday scored one run and knocked in another with Dick Green also driving in a tally.

Lou Piniella's three-run homer and Moe Drabowsky's strong relief pitching enabled the Royals to hold off Milwaukee. Piniella's third-inning homer gave Kansas City a 6-2 edge and Amos Otis knocked in the decisive two runs an inning later.

The Brewers got to within 8-6 when Drabowsky came on to get the last seven outs and preserve the victory for Bill Butler.

Dick McAuliffe's solo homer and a run-scoring single provided the difference in the Tigers' victory and Earl Wilson survived a shaky start to gain his first triumph of the year.

The Red Sox swept their three-game series with the Yankees, capped by Mike Andrews' pop fly single in the eighth inning, sparking a four-run rally.

Rico Petrocelli drove in four runs with a homer and sacrifice fly. Andrews also chipped in with a homer. Bobby Murcer had two RBIs for New York.

Allied Buildup Set Near Cambodia

ROUTE ONE BORDER CROSSING, Vietnam (AP) — A massive South Vietnamese and American military buildup is taking place along the Cambodian border north and south of this key crossing point.

There is no evidence of armed American forays across the frontier. But a battalion from the U.S. 25th Infantry Division has moved into the border region to relieve South Vietnamese troops now operating as far as 10 miles inside Cambodia.

The American infantrymen from the 25th Division have taken over a Vietnamese patrol base called Blue about 3½ miles northwest of the border crossing. There, the Americans are operating advanced radar to track North Vietnamese and Viet Cong rockets and mortars fired inside Cambodia. The radar operators say they relay their information back to the division's headquarters at Cu Chi.

A task force of more than 2,000 South Vietnamese troops plus hundreds of tanks and armored personnel carriers has been operating inside Cambodia in recent days. South Vietnamese jets and prop planes have been bombing North Vietnamese positions inside Cambodia in support of the task force.

Route One, the highway between Saigon and Phnom Penh, crosses the border 42 miles northwest of Saigon into an area of Cambodia called the Parrot's Beak on military maps. The military estimates more than 10,000 North Vietnamese and

BancOhio Names Wentling Vice President-Economist

Announcement was made today of the appointment, effective May 18, of James W. Wentling, 46, as vice president - economist and director of marketing of the Columbus-headquartered $1.4 billion asset Banc Ohio Corporation, Ohio's oldest and largest multi-bank holding company.

Wentling currently is vice president - economist and director of marketing of the Northeastern Ohio National Bank, Ashtabula.

According to Derrol R. Johnson, BancOhio chairman and Philip F. Searle, BancOhio president, Wentling will head a department which will coordinate all marketing activities including advertising, communication, market research, marketing training and new services development of the 23 BancOhio affiliate banks. The Circleville Second National Bank is an affiliate.

"We consider BancOhio extremely fortunate," they said, "to be able to place on our staff a man of Wentling's calibre. Nationally recognized in the field of bank marketing, Wentling has a broad educational background in business and economics and over ten years experience in retailing."

Wentling, a native of Ashtabula, received a bachelor of science degree from the University of Alabama in 1948, and a master of science degree from the same university in 1950, both degrees in business administration. He was graduated from the School of Bank Public Relations and Marketing, Northwestern University in 1964, and in 1969 finished the three-year course at the Stonier Graduate School of Banking, Rutgers University.

Wentling received national recognition for excellence in banking by having his Rutgers University thesis accepted for inclusion in the permanent collection of three libraries, Rutgers University, Harvard University, and The American Bankers Assn. The selection of the thesis for the libraries represents the highest honor awarded by the school. The thesis is entitled "The Marketing Value of the Collection, Development, and Presentation of Local Economic Data by the Bank Situated in a Non-SMSA."

In commenting upon his new position, Wentling stated that he is most enthusiastic about joining BancOhio Corporation. "In today's aggressive and increasingly competitive banking environment, marketing is a challenging field of endeavor. New technological applications continually afford the possibility of providing unique and useful new services to meet the ever-changing needs of the banking customer, and it is exciting to be involved in the dynamics of this growing industry. BancOhio Corporation is a strong and highly-respected banking entity, dedicated to the marketing concept, and I am happy to become a part of this management team."

BancOhio Corporation, which was organized in 1929, operates its 98 banking offices in 22 counties, mainly in central Ohio, its largest affiliated bank being the $800 million Ohio National Bank of Columbus. The Corporation operates more banking offices than any other Ohio banking organization.

As possible addition to its present total of 23 affiliated banks, the boards of directors of three other Ohio banks within recent months agreed to affiliation with BancOhio Corporation, subject to the required regulatory approvals. These are the Ankrum National Bank and Trust Company, The Community Bank of Napoleon, and The First National Bank at East Palestine. The first two of these mark the initial agreements for affiliation by the Corporation in the northwestern and the northeastern parts of Ohio respectively.

New Holland Men Receive Fines

In Municipal Court today, Judge Lamb fined a New Holland man $25 for assault and battery. Charges were filed against George Teets by Jerry Colburn.

Another New Holland man, John Wayne Newton, 25, was fined $15 and costs for speeding.

want the convenience of throw-aways despite the cost. Richard L. Cheney, executive director of the Glass Manufacturers Institute, notes Pepsi-Cola raised deposits to five cents in New York recently on a new batch of 600,000 16-ounce bottles. The bottles disappeared in six months.

But some dispute the contention that consumers want the NRs.

Dave Levinger, president of the New York local of the Soft Drink Workers Union, says the rise of larger bottling plants covering a wide area leads bottlers to encourage NRs and save the cost of transporting empty bottles.

The can and bottle industry supports public service cleanup campaigns and works with the government on research on disposal.

Aluminum firms pay a half a cent apiece for cans and melt them down for more cans. David P. Reynolds of Reynolds Aluminum reports 217,000 cans were turned in in one week in Los Angeles after offering the reward.

The Glass Container Manufacturers Institute had planned a $7.5 million campaign to promote throw-away bottles until Mrs. Knauer criticized the campaign in a speech. Now the campaign will include antilitter messages.

Pepsi-Cola is test marketing a burnable bottle. Federally funded scientists at Clemson University are experimenting with one which dissolves in water after being broken. The U.S. Bureau of Mines has developed a way to separate metal and glass from trash and make the substances reusable.

Robert W. Wood, Pickaway County treasurer, joined with other Republican county treasurers in endorsing Dale Davis for the nomination of State Treasurer in the May 5th primary.

Davis, Republican candidate for the office of State Treasurer, was recently endorsed by all but two of the Republican County Treasurers of Ohio for election in the May primary.

The Republican county treasurers felt Davis is the only one qualified in the Republican primary for the post of State Treasurer. Their position is based upon the knowledge of Dale Davis' experience. He is now serving his second term as Miami County Treasurer.

The Treasurers' group feels Davis has had an outstanding record in Miami County and as he served in the capacity of Legislative Chairman for the Ohio County Treasurers Association, and the Ohio County Officials Association. He was recently elected Vice President of the Ohio County Officials Association.

Allied Buildup Set Near Cambodia

ROUTE ONE BORDER CROSSING, Vietnam (AP) — A massive South Vietnamese and American military buildup is taking place along the Cambodian border north and south of this key crossing point.

There is no evidence of armed American forays across the frontier. But a battalion from the U.S. 25th Infantry Division has moved into the border region to relieve South Vietnamese troops now operating as far as 10 miles inside Cambodia.

The American infantrymen from the 25th Division have taken over a Vietnamese patrol base called Blue about 3½ miles northwest of the border crossing. There, the Americans are operating advanced radar to track North Vietnamese and Viet Cong rockets and mortars fired inside Cambodia. The radar operators say they relay their information back to the division's headquarters at Cu Chi.

A task force of more than 2,000 South Vietnamese troops plus hundreds of tanks and armored personnel carriers has been operating inside Cambodia in recent days. South Vietnamese jets and prop planes have been bombing North Vietnamese positions inside Cambodia in support of the task force.

Route One, the highway between Saigon and Phnom Penh, crosses the border 42 miles northwest of Saigon into an area of Cambodia called the Parrot's Beak on military maps. The military estimates more than 10,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops are in this region. Early this week they pushed to the outskirts of Svay Rieng, the Cambodian provincial capital about 30 miles west of Route One Crossing, but no attempt to take the town has been reported.

The situation is considered so politically explosive that American military police from the 25th Division have been stationed at the border to keep civilians and American military personnel from crossing into Cambodia.

The U. S. Command in Saigon has sent a message to all subordinate commands and province and district advisers ordering them to make no comments on the Cambodian situation.

BancOhio Names Wentling Vice President-Economist

Announcement was made today of the appointment, effective May 18, of James W. Wentling, 46, as vice president - economist and director of marketing of the Columbus-headquartered $1.4 billion asset BancOhio Corporation, Ohio's oldest and largest multi-bank holding company.

Wentling currently is vice president - economist and director of marketing of The Northeastern Ohio National Bank, Ashtabula.

According to Derrol R. Johnson, BancOhio chairman and Philip F. Searle, BancOhio president, Wentling will head a department which will coordinate all marketing activities including advertising, communication, market research, marketing training and new services development of the 23 BancOhio affiliate banks. The Circleville Second National Bank is an affiliate.

"We consider BancOhio extremely fortunate," they said, "to be able to place on our staff a man of Wentling's calibre. Nationally recognized in the field of bank marketing, Wentling has a broad educational background in business and economics and over ten years experience in retailing."

Wentling, a native of Ashtabula, received a bachelor of science degree from the University of Alabama in 1948, and a master of science degree from the same university in 1950, both degrees in business administration. He was graduated from the School of Bank Public Relations and Marketing, Northwestern University in 1964, and in 1969 finished the three-year course at the Stonier Graduate School of Banking, Rutgers University.

Wentling received national recognition for excellence in banking by having his Rutgers University thesis accepted for inclusion in the permanent collection of three libraries, Rutgers University, Harvard University, and The American Bankers Assn. The selection of the thesis for the libraries represents the highest honor awarded by the school. The thesis is entitled "The Marketing Value of the Collection, Development, and Presentation of Local Economic Data by the Bank Situated in a Non-SMSA".

In commenting upon his new position, Wentling stated that he is most enthusiastic about joining BancOhio Corporation. "In today's aggressive and increasingly competitive banking environment, marketing is a challenging field of endeavor. New technological applications continually afford the possibility of providing unique and useful new services to meet the ever-changing needs of the banking customer, and it is exciting to be involved in the dynamics of this growing industry. BancOhio Corporation is a strong and highly-respected banking entity, dedicated to the marketing concept, and I am happy to become a part of this management team."

BancOhio Corporation, which was organized in 1929, operates its 98 banking offices in 22 counties, mainly in central Ohio, its largest affiliated bank being the $800 million Ohio National Bank of Columbus. The Corporation operates more banking offices than any other Ohio banking organization.

As possible addition to its present total of 23 affiliated banks, the boards of directors of three other Ohio banks within recent months agreed to affiliation with BancOhio Corporation, subject to the required regulatory approvals. These are the Ankrum National Bank and Trust Company, The Community Bank of Napoleon, and The First National Bank at East Palestine. The first two of these mark the initial agreements for affiliation by the Corporation in the northwestern and the northeastern parts of Ohio respectively.

Cloud Sets Campaign Tour Here Saturday

State Auditor Roger Cloud, democratic candidate for governor, will arrive in Circleville Saturday by helicopter. He is scheduled to land at the Pickaway County Fairgrounds at 9:20 a.m. and proceed to a tour of the courthouse and campaigning until 10 a.m.

Traveling on the nine-county tour with Cloud will be Lt. Gov. John Brown.
